TEACHERS' PAY BIGGEST ELECTION ISSUE

THOUSANDS TURN OUT TO VOTE "YES"

Early Reports From All Over City Indicate Approval Is Being Registered

"Equal pay for equal service." That is the big issue today.

Thousands of voters turned out early to register their approval of this proposition by voting "yes."

Reports from the polling places throughout the city indicated that a heavy vote was being cast, with every prospect of a smashing victory for equal pay.

URGE "YES" VOTE.

Today the American continued to receive endorsements of its crusade to obtain equal salaries for women high school teachers with men.

Prominent persons of both sexes announced their enthusiastic approval of the plan and urged the voters to endorse it.

They asked why women should be discriminated against simply because of their sex.

It was also again pointed out that the high school women are the only ones in the Boston schools who are discriminated against.

Elementary teachers, principals and members of the board of superintendents all get equal pay with men.

RESENTED BY BOARD.

The majority of the school committee oppose equal pay because the matter was taken out of their hands by the Legislature and referred to the public.

The men high school teachers are against it for the reason that they want a 50 per cent. increase themselves, although receiving a maximum of $744 more than the women.

The Budget Commission and the Boston Chamber of Commerce have denounced the project on the ground that it will mean a tremendous tax burden to the city. Their objection is based on the probability that the elementary teachers will demand an increase if the bill becomes law.

Supporters of the equal pay plan point out, however, that the equal pay bill has nothing to do with the elementary teachers, who are on an equal basis with men financially at present.

That is one of the chief arguments in favor of the bill, the high school teachers being the only ones discriminated against.

Among the endorsements of the

FRENCH GIRL GIVES BEST EQUAL PAY ARGUMENT

MLLE. GEORGETTE ETIQUE.

Former Red Cross nurse in French army hospital during the war, who won first prize in essay contest held at the Girls' City Club. But two years in America, she advanced the best argument in favor of giving women teachers in high schools equal pay with men. "Women," she says, "is not the competitor of man, but his collaborator in the magnificent task of molding character, of directing minds and of assuring the welfare of the society of tomorrow."

It remained for a French woman, but two years in America, to advance the best argument for giving women teachers in Boston high schools the same pay as men, in those instances where the service is equal.

She won the first prize in the essay contest held at the Girls' City Club.

Mademoiselle Georgette Etique is the woman. She came from Montbeliard, in the Department of

BOY HELD FOR ASSAULT WITH INTENT TO KILL ATHOL LAD

Athol, Dec. 11.—Elton Hood, seventeen, No. 170 Spring street, was placed under arrest today charged with carrying a pistol without a license and with assault with intent to kill Henry M. Carey, twelve, son of William Carey.

It is claimed that Hood shot Carey through the chest in the Kennebunk street woods.

Carey was attended by Dr. Coolidge. It is said that his condition is critical.

Hood claims that the pistol went off accidentally, the bullet hitting Carey.

OFFICIAL SALARIES CUT BY GERMAN GOVERNMENT

Berlin, Dec. 11.—The German government has made its initial use of the authority granted it through the emergency powers bill recently passed by the Reichstag, by issuing a decree considerably reducing the salaries of officials. The action was taken in view of the country's critical financial situation.

SCHOOLGIRL SHOT DEAD IN QUARREL

ARREST MAY FOLLOW AUTOPSY

Undertaker's Discovery Reveals That 16-Year-Old Gertrude Hopps Was Slain

Groveton, N. H., Dec. 11.—The prettiest girl in the sophomore class at Groveton High School was Gertrude Hopps.

She was sixteen years old, with rose on her cheeks and a perpetual smile on her lips.

With a sunny disposition she was the last person Groveton would ever expect to figure in a mystery.

Yet today the town is upside down, the high school hushed and Gertrude Hopps' chums broken-hearted.

For Gertrude is dead, victim of a shooting, and nobody knows who shot her.

Her little body, so pretty in life when sport clad, it moved in and out of school rooms and homes, is the subject today of a stark, drear autopsy, with medical men making charts by its side.

UNABLE TO TELL.

Gertrude crumpled in her little chiffon-trimmed bedroom on Saturday last.

"I'm shot," she gasped as her panic-stricken mother ran to her side.

In the room was Michael Baird, her adopted brother. By the girl's side was a revolver.

She died as her mother cradled her head in her arms and begged her to speak. "I can't," she whispered weakly. "Goodbye mama."

'MAD' FIRE SPEEDERS STOPPED

Everett Hosecart Driver Loses License; "New Apparatus Jag," Says Goodwin

If your house is ablaze and your young life in danger
And the firemen brave you do call,
Be sure that you tell 'em it's naughty to hurry;
You'll wait while they come at a crawl.

For the fire fighter laddie can no longer move
With speed of a cyclonic blow.
He must move with decorum and great circumspect.
For Goodwin has ordered it so.

That's the firemen's lament out in Everett, where one Harvey McHarg, hosecart driver, sits mourning today minus his driver's license.

It was taken away from him by State Registrar of Motor Vehicles Frank A. Goodwin.

All smoked up about the incident is Fire Chief Ham. Says it is outrageous to think that a mere motor registrar can butt into a fire chief's department and deal out punishment to a red-shirted laddie.

The chief is suffering with the heat of a recent blaze, according to Mr. Goodwin, who said today:

"A few more of Everett's fire apparatus chauffeurs are going to lose their drivers' licenses if they don't stop driving like maniacs. Under the general laws I have all the right in the world to take action when I see fit. And I am going to take plenty if Everett's department doesn't get back to normal."

"NEW APPARATUS" JAG.

Everett's firemen, the registrar charges, have suddenly gone mad. They've got what he calls "a new apparatus jag on." Recently the department found a lot of nice new shiny fire engines, hose carts and trucks in their Christmas stockings. They took them out, got 'em going, and have had 'em going ever since. According to Mr. Goodwin they've been going in such a manner it has been a miracle that a lot of Everett folks haven't been killed. Here is what he charges has gone on in Everett recently:

On November 11 Driver McHarg, leaving a church blaze to answer another, sped through Ferry street,

BERMAN'S PARTNER GRILLED

Myer and Gordon Stage Potash and Perlmutter Act in Coakley Suit

The Potash and Perlmutter of Boston's hotel business back in 1916 was Myer Berman and Isaac Gordon. They operated the old Higgins Oyster House, Court street.

Myer is suing Daniel H. Coakley for $50,000, charging that Coakley "shook him down" for that amount when the Higgins House was doing a brisk business before the war.

The "shakedown" is alleged to have been staged about a married Cambridge couple, Fowler by name. Mrs. Fowler is alleged to have registered at the Higgins House with a strange man.

Result—her husband engaged William J. "George Washington" Corcoran as counsel to bring suit against the Potash and Perlmutter combine.

Berman got excited and settled for $35,000, Coakley doing the settling. Later he charged $15,000 for his fee.

GLARES AT PARTNER.

As partners Potash and Perlmuter should rise or fall together. But Perlmutter Gordon isn't doing any sticking these days. On the witness stand in Superior Court where the suit is being heard before Judge Wait he testifies as a Coakley witness and glares at Potash Myer as he gives trade secret answers.

Listen to Attorney William M. Garland, Berman's counsel cross-examine Perlmutter Gordon today relative to the cash settlement, at Coakley's office.

Q.—Of course you did not believe that your partner, Mr. Berman, had introduced this woman to a man, did you? A.—I had a doubt about Meyer for a long while.

Q.—You knew you would not do such a thing yourself? A.—To tell you the truth, I didn't have anything to do with Berman while we were running the hotel. I didn't have any talk with him. I thought it best to keep away.

Q.—Did you laugh? A.—I did not laugh, because I saw bother in sight.

Q.—Did Myer Berman laugh? A.—No, Myer was a long way from laughing.

Q.—Did Corcoran laufh, A.—No, Corcoran didn't laugh, and he didn't look wonderful pleasant.

Q.—Did Corcoran say anything

ROBB STILL IN CELL; SENTENCE DELAYED

Dr. William M. Robb, Back Bay physician who a few days ago pleaded guilty to causing the death of Mrs. Alice Wolschendorf, East Bridgewater victim in the famous Tyngsboro suitcase mystery, by illegal surgery, was to have appeared for sentence at ten o'clock today in the Middlesex Superior Court. At that hour he failed to appear.

District Attorney Arthur K. Reading then informed reporters there had been a change in plans, but in[illegible] in court later today. Further than this the district attorney would not commit himself.

A report reached the court house that Robb and State Detective Stokes had gone to find the missing head of Dr. Robb's victim. At the jail, however, they say Dr. Robb is still in his cell.

ONE DYING, 2 HURT AS AUTO HITS TEAM

One man is dying and a woman and man are at East Boston Relief Hospital with serious injuries, as the result of collision today on Saratoga street, Orient Heights, in which an automobile going at high speed crashed into the rear end of a wagon.

The injured are: Samuel Bordosky, thirty-eight, married, of No. 104 Auburn street, Chelsea, dying at Boston City Hospital.

Mrs. Roseann Crouse, twenty, of No. 22 Wordsworth street, East Boston, and Thomas W. Stratton, thirty-one and married, of No. 41 Wordsworth street; cuts, bruises and possible internal injuries.

Walter H. Crouse, husband of the injured woman, and driver of the automobile, escaped with minor bruises.

The horse drawing the wagon was shot at the hospital of the Massachusetts Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals. Two of the animals legs had been splintered.

When the crash occurred Bordosky was hurled into the road.

Mrs. Crouse and Stratton were also thrown out. All were given first aid treatment by Dr. George H. Allen and Relief Hospital attaches.

EDITOR JOHN R. RATHOM OF PROVIDENCE DEAD

Providence, Dec. 11.—John Revelstoke Rathom, editor and general manager of the Providence Journal and the Evening Bulletin for the past twelve years, died today at his home here. He was in his fifty-sixth year.

In August, 1922, Mr. Rathom underwent an operation, after which he never regained his health. His condition was so far improved in January of this year that he was able to leave this country for Europe, where he spent some seven months in the south of France and in England in an endeavor to regain his health.

Returning to this country last July Mr. Rathom went to a camp on Kennebago Lake in Maine, where of late years he spent his Summer vacations. He returned to his home here late in October and since then had been constantly under the care of physicians.

FIGHT FOR CONTROL OF CITY COUNCIL CENTRES AT POLLS TODAY

bill received by the American were the following:

Representative Richard M. Walsh—I spoke for the bill when it was before the Legislature and did my part in helping get it through. I am even more strongly in favor of it now. If women do equal work with men they should receive equal pay. It's a very simple proposition to my mind.

Attorney John F. Doherty, Democratic nominee for Lieutenant-Governor last year—I can conceive of no reason why women performing the same work as men should not be on the same basis and entitled to the same compensation. I am very much in favor of the bill and hope it will be endorsed by the public.

BARS SEX DISCRIMINATION.

Mrs. Arthur C. Roche, president League of Women Voters—I don't think sex should be the basis of discrimination. Length of training and ability should be the basis. I hope very much the voters of Boston will uphold the Legislature and the teachers will win a long fight for justice.

Mrs. Frederick P. Bagley, chairman of the women's division of the Republican State Committee—For years the women high school teachers have been appealing to the school committee for justice. Last year they presented a petition signed by 30,000 citizens, with no effect. There was nothing else to do but appeal to the Legislature, except strike. The Legislature referred it to the people for decision. I believe the bill should and will go through. If it is defeated this time the women will keep on fighting until they are successful.

City Councillor George F. Gilbody—I certainly am in favor of equal pay for equal service. If women in the high schools do the same work as men they should be paid the same. Sex discrimination is a blot on the escutcheon of Boston.

John J. Donovan, prominent Boston attorney—Equal pay for equal work by all means. If the women's work is satisfactory, pay them. Pay for satisfactory work performed either by men or women. There should be no discrimination.

Boston Council Fight Is Between Machine and G. G. A.

Boston voters at the polls today are voting for three candidates for the city council, two for the school committee and on two referenda, one "equal pay" for school teachers, and the other, license for the sale of non-intoxicating beverages.

Although an off year in local politics, with no mayoralty fight as the centre of interest, two big features loom up at the eleventh hour which are attracting the attention of voters today.

The first is the fight of the Democratic City Committee and the Good Government Association, which has been bitter during the past few days, for control of the city council.

The other is on the referenda as to "equal pay" for school teachers.

POLLS OPEN TONIGHT.

Another additional factor is the fact that for the first time at a city election evening voting will be held. The polls were opened at 8 a. m., and are to close at 8 p. m.

For the first time since the city charter was put into effect, thirteen years ago, party designations have been made publicly. The Democratic City Committee has openly submitted a council slate to the voters.

They have endorsed James T. Moriarty, present city councillor; James T. Purcell and Louis Lebowitz.

The Good Government candidates are: President Daniel W. Lane and Henry E. Hagan. Both are seeking re-election.

CURLEY INACTIVE.

The failure of Mayor Curley to take an active part in the campaign, although it is said that he passed the word along to elect Moriarty, and the failure of Martin Lomasney to indorse Henry Hagan are two of the outstanding features of this year's fight. This is the first time that Hagan has run without the 'Mahatma's" o. k.

Candidates for the school committee are: Walter G. McGauley, Edward M. Sullivan, David D. Scannell and George McDermott.

State Police Guard Chelsea Voting Booths for Repeaters

Ten State police have been assigned to watch for "repeaters" at the municipal election in Chelsea today. Twelve other Massachusetts cities, including Boston, are also holding elections today.

Colonel Foote, commander of the State police, assigned ten special guards at the request of Senator James E. Beck of Chelsea, who made an appeal to Governor Cox.

Mayor Lawrence J. Quigley seeks re-election and Joseph Tyrell, secretary of the Chamber of Commerce, and a member of the Board of Aldermen, is running on the opposition ticket.

FRENCH GIRL'S ESSAY WINS

Doubs, in Eastern France, to teach the French language in exclusive Beacon Hill homes.

During the World War, Mademoiselle Etique served as a Red Cross nurse in a French army hospital in the Vosges. She later assisted the French Government in its rehabilitation work by teaching sewing to disabled soldiers.

DISLIKES FLAPPER.

In her two years in Boston, this twenty-six-year-old French woman has spent her spare time learning the English language and in a close study of the people and customs of New England.

Mademoiselle Etique likes the American girl, but she prefers the French girl. The flapper is distasteful to her.

And bobbed hair, "c'est terrible," she exclaimed with a toss of her head that accentuated her wealth of auburn hair.

American girls should study more, but they have not the time, the pretty Frenchwoman believes, "because when one's time is devoted to jazz music and dancing and parties and theatres and football games, there is no time left for study.

THEATRE AN EDUCATION.

"But don't misunderstand when I mention the theatre," she hastened to interpose, "for I like the theatre—that is, opera, good concerts and real drama. They are a part of one's education and should not be neglected."

Boston is a wonderful city, a city with which New York is not to be compared, Mademoiselle Etique, who has seen both cities, declared.

In the essay which won the prize offered by the Girls' City Club, Mademoiselle Etique, thinking along original lines, points out that woman is not to be held as the competitor of man, but as the collaborator of man, and that because of worthy collaboration in which woman has equal responsibility and contributes equally toward the education of youth, her reward should be equal.

Her essay follows:

"In my opinion the reasons for the right of women to salaries which are the same as those of the men teachers in the high schools are as follows.

Mayors Seeking Re-Election as Nine Cities Vote

Mayors are being elected in the following cities outside Boston today:

Chelsea, Everett, Lawrence, Lynn, Malden, Newton, Somerville, Woburn, Worcester.

Except in Lawrence, all incumbents are seeking re-election.

"It is not only from the standpoint of knowledge and scholastic development, as evidenced by university training, that men and women teachers are equal. They are also exposed to the same application of their knowledge, the same problems, the same privations.

"During the last few years the role of women, both as individuals and as members of society, has acquired an enormous importance. The World War rendered a large number of women free by forced celibacy. As a consequence, these women must today count only on their own efforts in order to be able to live. This, by the way, is beneficial in some respects in that it liberates some women from what amounts to slavery.

HEAVY BURDEN.

"The working woman, in addition to supporting herself, must also in a majority of cases take care of dependents. This burden is often as heavy as that of a man with a family. On the other hand, there are many men teachers who have no children, so that the often cited argument concerning the necessity of higher salaries for men in order to allow them to take care of their families, is unsound.

"There is no doubt that, physically, man is the favorite of nature. He wants to go ahead because he feels his strength. Counter-balancing this, however, woman has a finesse, an intuition, a moral strength, joined to an abnegation to good causes which make of her a magnificent inspiration for the rising generation. These qualities far from making men pupils effeminate, rader them courageous and teach them the way to the really worth-while things in life.

SCHOOLS NOT A BURDEN.

"Schools are not a business, as some would have us believe. We are not here bidding for services of men and women because they are cheap, but because they are valuable. Woman is not the competitor of man, but his collaborator in the magnificent task of moulding character, of directing minds and of assuring the welfare of the society of tomorrow.

"If, then, women give as much of themselves as men in the great common task of education, if they are as capable of inspiring the youth of the land and of imparting to them their knowledge, is it not fair that they should receive the same remuneration?

"Equal pay for equal service appears, then, as the least that could be done as a humanitarian measure, giving the women only what they have earned and what they deserve."

Mademoiselle Etique came to the United States on the invitation of Mrs. Hugh Bancroft, prominent Beacon Hill society woman. She now teaches French in twenty-six Boston homes. Her Boston residence is at No. 491 Huntington avenue, Back Bay.

POLICE SAY BUSINESS MAN IS BRIDGEWATER FIREBUG

Bridgewater, Dec. 11.—The mystery which for the past two weeks has attended the series of incendiary fires in the deserted Hepburn house on Crescent street is a mystery no longer, according to Chief of Police Moore, who states that a prominent business man of this town, whom the chief declined to name, is the guilty party. No arrest has yet been made, but action is expected soon along other lines.

This man is said to have been caught red-handed when the third fire of the series was started, last Saturday afternoon. He had been seen in the neighborhood at one of the previous fires. His explanation when questioned about the latest attempt was that he had stepped into the vacant house out of the wind to light a cigarette, and that the blaze must have started when he threw a match away.

THE Republicans are having a political honeymoon, with Mr. Coolidge as bride. Everything is beautiful. The President will enter the primaries, in California and Illinois, just to show voters that he can beat Hiram Johnson.

If that decision has been reached, then ancient George Harvey and young Will Hays have slipped.

AS between an excellent New Englander, of whom they know nothing, and Hiram Johnson, a fighting native son of California, there isn't the faintest doubt as to what California will do. Hiram Johnson would beat Mr. Coolidge at the primaries in California by at least 150,000, and Johnson would beat Coolidge in Illinois and Michigan also.

NEWSPAPERS talk of Harvey, Hays and Lodge as advisers and unofficial managers of President Coolidge. Let it be remembered that his real manager will be Mr. Mellon, Secretary of the Treasury. The election in 1924 depends upon prosperity in 1924. The management will come when Mr. Mellon sees to it that money is plentiful without reckless inflation. If everything is booming in November, 1924, everybody busy and getting high wages, that will be Mr. Mellon's work, and that will be the real "Presidential management."

ANOTHER version of the Bible is to be published, "the American Bible." Professor Scharff worked thirty years on the translation. J. P. Morgan & Co. are interested in the publication.

But the majority will prefer the marvelous language of the old King James version.

"For the stars of Heaven and the constellation thereof shall not give their light; the sun shall be darked in His going forth, and the moon shall not cause her light to shine."

You can't improve much on that kind of English.

HOUSEWIVES, listen to this, with envy. Dr. Council, of Cordova, Alaska, has a fox farm on an island off the Alaskan coast. The problem of feeding has been arranged pleasantly. Dr. Council's men will catch whales, and the foxes will eat the whales. One whale will feed many foxes a long time. And foxes like their whale meat "high."

Mothers of big families cannot solve their food problem so easily.

THE accident on the Twentieth Century was partly due to running three sections together. The marvel is not that nine were killed, but that the disaster did not kill hundreds. No greater tribute to the construction of the heavy steel cars could be imagined than the result of that accident—one high-speed train dashing into another.

IF MECHANICALLY possible, it should be impossible for one train to enter a block until the other train left. The Swiss government railways are equipped with automatic system that set the brakes on a train electrically the moment it runs by a signal. The same automatic system exists in the subways of New York.

IN JUSTICE to the railroad, it must be said that no train has been managed more care-

SEEK TRACE OF BIG SUMS FOR DISABLED VETS

Thousands of dollars were collected by entertainments and benefits by officers of the Massachusetts Association of Disabled Veterans, but so far officials of the Postal Department investigating the alleged misuse of funds, have been unable to find out what has become of the money.

William H. Burns, president of the association, declined positively to make any statement regarding the funds of the association. He would not say when, if ever, the books of the association had been audited.

Postoffice Inspector Byron Hall is just as much at sea as any one. Weeks of investigating on his part have failed to bring to light anything regarding the expenditure of the vast sums that have been raised for the benefit of "men with flapping sleeves and gas-torn lungs"

FIVE UNDER ARREST.

Five of the six persons named in the Federal warrants are now under arrest and have been held for the grand jury. Burns, president of the organization, and James Hannafin, surrendered to the United States Marshal, after Frank J. Murphy and John Doucette had given themselves up. Deputy Marshall Fraser had arrested Francis W. Marshall on Saturday and at the same time took into custody Henry R. Johnson, a colored employe, charging him with attempting to obstruct justice.

Leo J. Conway is being sought by deputy U. S. marshals. All of the accused will be given a hearing before United States Commissioner Hayes next Monday. In the meantime sensational developments in regard to the manipulation of the association funds are expected.

HEARTY RESPONSES.

It is asserted that business and professional men in all sections of the city opened their purses at the appeal of the Association.

The Sunday before Thanksgiving a benefit performance was given at Tremont Theatre. Thousands of tickets, marked to sell at $2 each, were sent broadcast throughout the city.

As a result a large sum was realized. No accounting of this money has ever been made, as far as can be learned.

HEEDS PLEA OF COP; RETURNS FOR TRIAL

Thanks to the persuasive tongue of Special Officer Louis Disessa, of the Boston police, John G. O'Brien of the South End, has come back to face the music and the law.

O'Brien was arrested in November charged with stealing a physician's instrument bag at the City Hospital, containing tools valued at $200. On the same day another John G. had been in America but a few weeks.

On November 7 both O'Briens were called for trial. The second O'Brien was still sleeping off the effect of the liquor he had imbibed, so the first O'Brien stepped up and answered the charge of drunkenness. He said it was his first offence, and, in view of this, the case was placed on file. O'Brien immediately left for New York.

Later in the day it was found that the John G. O'Brien arrested for drunkenness was still in his cell.

Recently, in the Grand Central station, New York city, Special Officer Disessa was about to take a train for Boston. He had been in New York on a stabbing case. He had seen O'Brien in court and recognized him as he stepped aboard the train.

Disessa followed the man, boarded the same train and managed to get into conversation with him. O'Brien told the officer the story of his life and Disessa pointed out the error of his ways, telling O'Brien that the only thing to do was go back to Boston and face the music.

O'Brien finally agreed to do so, and will be arraigned for his original offence in the Municipal Court today.

HUB BAIL-JUMPER SEIZED IN NEW YORK

Tony Quince of New York city was arrested here not long ago charged with violating the drug law. He was released under $10,000 bail. Jumping his bail, he fled to New York city. Special Officer Louis DeSessa of the East Dedham street station was sent to New York after him. DeSessa located Quince and arrested him, charging him with being a fugitive from justice. Quince is fighting extradition, and is now in jail in New York while the necessary papers are being made out.

STRIKE ISOLATES AUSTRIA FROM WORLD

Berlin, Dec. 11 (Universal Cable).—Austria is completely isolated from the rest of the world by a strike of all telephone, telegraph and postoffice employes, which began on schedule time today.

The issue is the cut in wages of civil service employes under the extreme economy program enforced on Austria under the supervision of the League of Nations.

AIR SCOUT AIDS RUM RUNNERS

War Ace Guides Bootlegs Off Jersey; Cutters Balk the Landing of Cargoes

Keyport, N. J., Dec. 11.—Fighting tooth and nail to land before Christmas many thousand cases of liquor now bobbing around Rum Row, bottle fishermen have been forced to press a scout airplane into service.

Runners are paying "Monte," a war aviator, $150 a trip to fly along the row three times a week and chart the location of the motherships for the small craft which otherwise might search in vain for them during the night. The latest report of this birdman showed sixteen ships at anchor off the coast, while half a dozen more hovered off Fire Island.

Although a vast supply of liquor to quench New York's thirst lies just outside the harbor, little is being landed in comparison to the flood which poured ashore last Winter, if lamentations along the coast are to be taken at their face value.

PRICES GO SOARING.

Prices along Rum Row have gone soaring, for the business of rum runner, afloat and ashore, apparently is approaching a state of suspended animation through the operation at sea of the Coast Guard cutters and the activities ashore of State Police, enforcement agents, and special county detectives, aided by the raids on liquor caravans made by bands of hijackers.

A reporter, accompanying a detachment of the State Police on a twenty-hour tour of duty, covered approximately 150 miles of highways and byways to most of the secret liquor-landing and re-loading points on the ocean front. The tour—one of many that constantly are being made—netted the authorities a half-dozen trucks and automobiles and about 400 cases of whiskey.

INFORMATION SOUGHT.

In Freehold, the entire male population seemed to have gathered at the chief hotel to see the raiders off. Everyone seemed to want to know what roads were to be patrolled and what landing places raided.

"The bootleg ring knows all about us," Sergeant Tigue who was in charge of the detail, explained. "They're paying a man a bankers' salary to stop at this hotel and keep tab on our movements."

Every one of the smooth concrete highways leading from the sea ports inshore carried a steady stream of trucks and touring cars, all traveling at breakneck speed.

"Three out of five of them are hauling liquor," said Tighe.

CONVERSE BY FLASHES.

But he had bigger game in sight.

There's a brickyard in Keyport with a water landing. Its tiny harbor was dark and soundless. A gray shadow rode at anchor 100 yards off shore. Presently a bright light flashed from the shadow and disappeared. Five minutes later another, which was answered by a bright flash from a deserted building ashore.

The floating shadow was a "spot-boat signalling "All safe in the harbor," and the watchman in the house flashing "All right ashore."

There was the roar of a powerful exhaust farther out to sea. In a few moments a boat without lights was nosing her way to the landing. From the shadows sprang a crew of men to receive her. Without a word, and only an occasional grunt, she was unloaded, her cargo—thirty cases this time—piled on the dock.

The little craft sped away before the troopers reached her. They were in time, however, to seize the liquor and an automobile with a New York license, which appeared beside the wharf and was being loaded for a trip to the city.

SENATORS FACE TWO DEADLOCKS

Fight to Elect New President Will Follow That Over Cummins' Committee

Washington, Dec. 11.—Senate Republican leaders today faced an indefinite deadlock over the nomination of Senator Cummins of Iowa, president pro tem, for chairman of the Interstate Commerce Committee, with some members predicting the insurgents' fight against his re-election to that post would continue several weeks.

Unlike the House, however, which was in recess while Republican and Democratic committees were pressing forward their work of making selections for the various standing committees, the Senate was able to function, and a resumption of the voting on the Interstate Commerce chairmanship was put off until late in the day.

The Senate Democrats, meanwhile, withheld their contemplated move to force an election of a president pro tem, which, if it developed, is expected to produce another deadlock after the present fight is finished.

Three ballots gave no sign of weakness on either side. Several insurgent votes went steadily to Senator LaFollette of Wisconsin, leader of the bloc and ranking Republican on the committee, and the Democrats voted solidly for Senator Smith of South Carolina.

Cummins declared he would not bargain with the LaFollette supporters, whose position, as outlined by Senator Norris of Nebraska, one of their leaders, is that they are willing for him to continue as president pro tem, but do "not think it fair or right or in the interest of good legislation that he try to hold both offices." Senator Brookhart of Iowa, another insurgent, said he voted for LaFollette as "the best man for chairmtn" to bring about repeal of the Transportation Act.

MRS. SINCLAIR'S FUR COAT IS STOLEN

Mrs. H. F. Sinclair.

New York, Dec. 11.—A fur coat, valued at $3,500, belonging to Mrs. Harry F. Sinclair, wife of the oil man and owner of the racehorse Zev, was stolen from the firm of Kelly & Stuzzieri, furriers, No. 714 Fifth avenue, police announced.

According to Mr. Kelly, three women posing as mother and daughters, entered the store to look at coats. While Kelly was writing a receipt for a deposit the older woman drew a revolver and told him to "keep still." The trio then went down the elevator, taking Mrs. Sinclair's coat with them.

BRITISH COMMUNISTS PROCLAIM "REVOLT"

London, Dec. 11.—The Executives of the British Communist Party have issued a statement which, the Daily Express says, contains the following:

"The Communist Party feels justified in adopting any methods to fight the reactionary and capitalist forces. Just as the labor candidates in the past have been victimized, so have we, and now that we have the organization and the means we are determined to adopt any methods of fighting. As the revolutionary party, we must adopt revolutionary tactics."

CHILD SWALLOWS SAFETY PIN; DIES

New York, Dec. 11.—Willis T. Wild, one-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Willis T. Wild, Jr., of No. 305 Union street, Cranford, N. J., died in the St. Elizabeth Hospital, Elizabeth, as the result of swallowing an open safety pin on Friday. The pin was removed in an operation, but the child's heart proved unequal to the strain.

20,000,000 FACE FAMINE IN GERMANY SAYS HOOVER

Washington, Dec. 11.—Twenty million Germans of the middle class and urban populations are facing famine this Winter, Secretary Hoover informed Representative Hamilton Fish, Jr., of New York, in a letter published today declaring creation of a foreign commercial credit of food supplies, permission for which is now being sought by the German government, offered the most constructive solution of the situation.

Mr. Fish is in hearty accord with the proposal that permission be granted the German government in order to secure a private loan in this county and pedicted that the Washington govenment would exert influence to secure the acceptance by the Reparation Commission of priority for this loan, not exceeding $70,000,000.

SON OF CAMBRIDGE POLICE LIEUTENANT UNDER ARREST

Worcester, Dec. 11.—Evidence that a romance of a few months, which resulted in the marriage of two wealthy Boston young people, has crashed to earth came to light here with the arrest of Dr. James P. Hall, a dentist, at No. 34 Front street, Worcester, son of a Cambridge police lieutenant.

Dr. Hall was arrested by Detective Sergeant Albert Murphy on a warrant sworn out by his wife, whose home is at Newton, charging neglect to support.

Dr. Hall said both he and his wife had run through a small fortune which they possessed at the time of their marriage.

70 CANS OF ALCOHOL FOUND FLOATING NEAR NEW BEDFORD

New Bedford, Dec. 11.—Thirty-five wooden cases each containing two five-gallon cans of alcohol were floating off Mattapoisett Neck near here and taken charge of by State and Federal officers who are trying to solve the mystery of whence it came here.

As no boats have been reported lost near here recently, the authorities lean to the belief that the alcohol was part of the cargo of the rum lighter John Dwight sunk in Vineyard Sound some months ago with a loss of several lives.

The body of one of the wrecked crew was washed ashore in the same spot where the alcohol was found.

MAY COLOR GASOLINE RED TO CUT DOWN ACCIDENTS

Washington, Dec. 11.—A study of the hazards of gasoline made by the Bureau of Mines has resulted in the suggestion that all motor gasoline be colored red as a safety measure designed to guard against its being mistaken for water, kerosene or other colorless liquid products.

The bureau has made a number of experiments with a dye and has found that one ounce is sufficient to give a distinct color to 1,000 gallons of gasoline at an approximate cost of 7 cents.

GUNBOAT TO SAIL FOR OIL PORT

Troops Marching on Capital as Gains for Insurgents Are Reported

Vera Cruz, Mexico, Dec. 11 (A.P.)—The gunboat Zaragoza is prepared to sail for Tampico to assist in the attack on that city which is to be undertaken by the troops of Governor Lopez de Lara of Tamaulipas in conjunction with troops commanded by General Martinez. The operation against Tampico is to be directed by General Alfonso de la Huerta.

Advices received here say that Celaya, in the State of Guanajuato, north of Mexico City, has fallen into the hands of the rebels commanded by Gen. Gabaya.

A radio message from the headquarters of Gen. Enrique Estrada commander of the western forces, says that the advance on the capital from this direction is continuing.

TO FOLLOW RAILWAY.

Troops are leaving Vera Cruz for the point of concentration from which the march on the capital from the East is to be started. This advance will be along the line of the Mexican Railway.

It is reported that a band of 100 Federal soldiers, sent to oppose the rebels, joined the insurgents near San Andres, Puebla.

Troops which took possession of Puerto de Mexico pursued and dispersed the forces of Gen. Belmar, who abandoned the town.

Coincident with reports that Tepic, capital of Nayarit, had fallen to the rebellious forces, General J. Gonzalo Escobar, commander of the department comprising the States of Durango and Coahuila, was entoure with 2,000 troops from Torreon to cut off the rear of General Estrada, military officials at Juarez learned.

CENSOR AT WORK.

A dispatch from Nogales, Sonora, says that all Federal telegraph lines of Mazatlan, through the States of Nayarit and Jalihco, have been suspended and that a strict censorship is in force. Direct communication with Mexico City has been severed.

Efforts of Governor Ygnacio Enriquez of Chihuahua to bring about peace between Adolfo de la Huerta and General Calles another presidential candidate, against whom the rebellion is aimed, apparently were halted by the blowing up of a railway line. The destruction of the line marooned Enriquez, who was en route to Mexico City, in Durango, below Chihuahua.

The garrison at Tepic divided Sunday and 200 soldiers rebelled, according to reports reaching Nogales, Ariz., which said General Anatolio Ortega, chief of military operations in Nayarit, who commanded the garrison, was seriously wounded. A young sub-lieutenant was killed. The revolt was said to have been led by General Manuel Diaguez, commander under the regime of Carranza.

ALLEGED PICKPOCKET SEIZED IN SUBWAY

Fred Reed, alias Andrew Kuntz, thirty-five years old, of Ohio, notorious pickpocket, was arrested in the Massachusetts subway station by Inspector Joseph Rollins after, the latter alleges, he observed Reed jostling passengers suspiciously.

Reed was booked at headquarters on suspicion. Numerous complaints have been received from passengers that their pockets have been picked in the Massachusetts station recently, the police say. Reed, the police say, has a long record as a pickpocket.

TREAT IN STORE FOR FRIENDS OF BASKET FUND WHO ATTEND BALL IN AID OF DESERVING POOR

HUNDREDS IN APPEAL FOR BASKET FUND DINNER

Hundreds of letters appealing for food continue to pour into the office of the Boston American's Helping Hand Christmas Basket Fund. Unless contributions come in faster, it is evident at this early date that a large number of these appeals will remain unanswered.

In one mail alone yesterday 180 letters asking for food were received. Remember, the American will do its best to feed all of these unfortunates, but it MUST have more co-operation if the needy of this city are to be fed Christmas.

PITIFUL STORIES.

Every one of the letters received from tired mothers or undernourished children contains a pitiful story of hard luck, illness and destitution. They are all alike in one respect—each contains the hope that the family will have a substantial dinner on Christmas Day.

An order for 3,000 parcels of food has been placed with the Arthur E. Dorr Company, Incorporated, of this city. These parcels costs $2.75 at wholesale. Nothing but the best quality food will go into them. Every parcel will contain the following:

CONTENTS OF PARCEL.

Two first class milk fed chickens, each weighing between three and three and one-half pounds; one-half peck Aroostook County, Maine, best grade Winter potatoes; one loaf Bond bread; one can best Maine corn; one package Salada tea; one package plain soda crackers; one package ginger snaps; one can cranberry and sugar sauce.

All of these articles, with the exception of Bond bread and Salada Tea, have been ordered from the Dorr Company, one of the highest grade business houses of its kind in this city. The bread and tea were contributed free by the manufacturers, who made a similar gift to the Christmas Basket Fund for several years.

Officials of the Dorr Company have promised to co-operate with the American in seeing that the food is in first class condition when it reaches the persons to whom it will be given.

Every parcel of food that the American Fund will give away will be packed in a new sanitary pasteboard carton. Realizing how sensitive many families are regarding a gift of this nature, the Christmas Fund Director has arranged to have no printed matter on the exterior of these parcels. It is the desire to place the food where really needed and without attracting the attention of neighbors to those who receive it.

The Christmas Fund director promises those who attended the charity ball in Copley Plaza Hotel, next Thursday evening, one of the finest entertainments ever conducted.

VOLUNTEERS NEEDED.

Many volunteer are needed for next Saturday's Santa Claus Tag Day in aid of the American's Fund. Every penny derived from the sale of celluloid Santa Claus bangles will be turned over to the Fund and used only for the purpose of buying food for needy families at Christmas.

Tag day headquarters will be located on the fourth floor of No. 36 Otis street, and will be in charge of Bert Spears, who will welcome the assistance of any women and girls of sixteen years of age or over, even if they can give but two hours of their time. This is an excellent opportunity for persons who cannot make a direct contribution to the Fund to give it a boost. Mr. Speare may be reached by telephoning Main 4726.

fully than that Twentieth Century, or more efficiently. This is the first accident in five years, and bad as it is, it proves the high character of the road's equipment.

A longer headway between the various sections of the Century seems to be demanded. Ten or fifteen minutes longer on a trip of a thousand miles would be of little importance.

JUST WHAT did President Coolidge mean in his Gridiron speech, telling of "some arrangement to be entered into by the United States in the next few days that promises greatly to improve, if not to completely settle, conditions in Europe?" Those that heard the President's talk—this writer did not—are not exact as to verbiage, but unanimous on the meaning. What kind of arrangement could settle Europe's troubles?

The United States, surely, is not going into any European enterprise without giving Congress and the people a chance to pass on it.

MR. COOLIDGE issues another message on cutting taxes—soothing to those that have big incomes. Little people, buying a house on the instalment plan, will believe that their real estate taxes are to be reduced. That false impression will last up to election day.

Three hundred millions more to be cut from the taxes is the President's immediate recommendation.

THIS COUNTRY does its financial business in a big way. Take this extract from the President's latest message:

"In less than seven years, to put the matter briefly, we have spent forty billion dollars and have paid off from current revenues eighteen billion dollars, or nearly half the amount."

A nation that can run the most expensive government in the world and pay off debts at the rate of nearly three billion dollars a year is fairly well off.

SCHOOLGIRL IS DEAD IN ROW

street, Groveton, an undertaker pinned a lavender crepe, then removed the body for embalming.

"Gertie accidentally shot herself," her father, Myron Hopps, had remarked.

UNDERTAKER'S DISCOVERY.

The undertaker, H. A. Trask, in the privacy of his morgue, raised eyebrows and whistled softly as he noted the bullet wound above the dead girl's heart.

Then he telephoned County Solicitor Matthew J. Ryan of Berlin.

"Looks suspicious," said the undertaker. "Hold the body," said Ryan.

Examination revealed that Gertrude Hopps could not have fired the bullet which killed her.

The course of the bullet was downward. The gun must have been fired from a level impossible for one to maintain and point for self-destruction.

The girl's body never went back to the Hopps home and the group of boy and girl mourners trooping into the old-fashioned parlor were asked to go home.

AWAIT THE WORD.

The parlor was darkened, the crepe removed. Gertrude stayed on in the undertaker's morgue where today experts bent over her marbled body diagramming the course of the bullet which blew out the spark of life.

They are State Pathologist Kingfelt and Dr. William F. Noyes, medical referee. By them stand County Solicitor Ryan.

The moment the learned doctors utter that gruesome word "murder," Solicitor Ryan will order arrests and the mystery of Gertrude Hopps' sad death will begin in earnest.

Two weeks ago Gertrude left high school. Gossips said she had had a quarrel with a young business man whom she loved. Was that quarrel the basis for Gertrude to seek death? Did she beg somebody in her family to shoot her down? Or are the learned medical men wrong and Gertrude shot herself?

Groveton awaits the answer.

the Asiatic fleet, heads the detachment. Among the destroyers are the Pope, Pillsbury, Preston and Sicard. They are expected to arrive at Hong Kong Thursday.

Concentration of foreign warships at Canton was indicated in reports from that city last week after threats were said to have been made by Dr. Sun Yat Sen, South China leader, that he would seize the customs funds of the port unless he was allotted 13 per cent. of the surplus from the fund by the Pekin government.

Earlier reports that the custom house had been seized at Canton were found to be erroneous, but it was learned that a flotilla of gunboats, comprising four British, two French, two American, one Portuguese and one Japanese vessel, was anchored in the harbor, with the situation under close surveillance.

RUSSIA HOPES FOR PACT SOON WITH U. S.

Moscow, Dec. 11.—Russia and Italy have reached agreement on conditions for Italian recognition of the Soviet state, said Leo Kameneff addressing the new Moscow Soviet yesterday.

Relations with America appear improving, M. Kameneff said, especially in view of President Coolidge's message to Congress, and Russia, seeing no obstacles in the way, hopes that an American-Soviet conference can be held soon.

Sofia, Dec. 11 (A.P.)—Moscow has resumed its efforts to "re-establish a system of Bolshevik penertation," says a statement issued by the ministerial council. King Boris and his government are determined to fight the spread of sovietism, it is announced.

The arrest of Soviet agents recently has satisfied the authorities the Red system was not eliminated last Summer. The government believes Moscow still plans to work westward through Bulgaria. Russian funds are said to be flowing into this country.

MYSTERY NOTE IS FOUND ON DAZED GIRL

Fall River, Dec. 11.—The identity and actions of a fifteen-year-old "mystery girl," who was found wandering in a dazed condition in the Fall River railroad station, are puzzling the police here.

The girl, when questioned by the authorities, was unable to give any information concerning herself.

To add to the mystery, a puzzling note was found in a pocket in the girl's coat, which read:

"Dear sir—I would be very much pleased if you would let her go as far as Fall River, and send your expense to 94 Park Avenue, Woonsocket, R. I., Mr. J. Badger."

Investigation by the Woonsocket police revealed no such address as 94 Park avenue in that city, nor was any man named J. Badger known there.

The attention of a policeman was first attracted to the girl when he observed her wandering aimlessly about the depot. When he approached her, the patrolman noticed she appeared dazed. When questioned concerning her name, address, and her parents, she could only answer, "I don't know."

The patrolman took the girl to the police station where further efforts to learn her indentity also failed. She was then seached by the police matron and the mysterious note was found.

Now, alert police officials peer intently at the small scrap of paper.

What they want to know is:

What does the mysterious note mean? and,

Who is the "mystery" girl?

BEACON TO CONTROL BROOKLINE TRAFFIC

A new beacon light traffic control, said to be the first of its kind in New England, was installed at Beacon and Carlton streets, Brookline, and elicited much favorable comment. The apparatus stands about five feet high, has four lights, two red, one yellow and one green, on each side, and is operated by a patrolman on the sidewalk. The operator was Traffic Officer James Thompson.

With the new apparatus, the officer on the sidewalk brings traffic to a slower rate of speed by switching on the yellow light on which ever side traffic is to be halted.

'Dope' Is Greatest Enemy of Hub's Young Girls, Says Policewoman

Drags Hundreds Down to Life Worse Than Death; Addict Will Stop at Nothing to Satisfy Craving for Drug

This is the eighth of a series of articles written for the American by the policewomen of Boston. In today's article Mrs. Agnes T. Callahan paints a graphic picture of drugs and young girls.

By MRS. AGNES T. CALLAHAN
Member of Boston's Police Department

DOPE
GRACE WAS HEATING SPOON WITH LIGHTED MATCH
Here lies GRACE
GRACE WILL NEVER USE DOPE AGAIN

MRS. AGNES T. CALLAHAN
Boston police woman who tells of her experiences with youthful victims of morphine habit.

One of the greatest enemies of Boston's young girls is "dope."

Like a huge octopus the long arms of the "dope" producers stretch out through the streets of Boston and drag down hundreds upon hundreds of our young girls each year. Drag them down to a life that is worse than death; drag them down to a point where they stop at nothing to get another ounce of the drug that temporarily removes them from the realities of their sordid existence.

"DOPE" HABIT TO BLAME.

Every now and then you read of some young girl meeting death by poison. You do not think much of it. Many of you think that perhaps the girl is just another who has gotten into a scrape and doesn't dare face the folks at home. Sometimes you are right.

But many, many times behind that death you will find the "dope" habit. If the girl had never started dope she would still be alive and as cheerful as she was before the evil hand of the dope peddler reached her.

Since prohibition went into effect the "dope" addicts have increased among the young girls of the city. Before prohibition days there [illegible] "dope" addicts among the girls, but not the number that there are today. Then a lot of these girls would go to the cafes and maybe take more liquor than was good for them, but they would sleep that off.

With "dope" it is different. They sleep it off, of course, but as soon as they awake they must have more "dope." They can't live without it. They will give all they possess to get even an ounce of the terrible stuff. Yes, they will sell their souls and bodies when they can't get it any other way. I know whereof I speak when I say this. I have seen enough of these young girls and have listened to their stories. They make your blood run cold.

IMPROVISED NEEDLE.

Just to illustrate how firmly the "dope" habit gets a girl in its [illegible] let me tell you of an experience. I will call the young girl Grace. That was not her real name.

I was walking along a street in the South End of Boston one afternoon. I happened to look into the doorway of a tenement house and there I saw Grace. She had her dress pulled up above her knees and was digging at her knee with a large safety pin.

I started toward her, but when I saw what she was doing I waited. Then she took a spoon out of a bag, sifted a little white powder into the spoon and lighted a match. She spat on the powder and held the lighted match under the spoon for a short time. Then when it burned out she lighted another. Three matches heated the spoon and melted the powder. Then she pulled up her dress again and poured the heated mass onto the big incision she had made on her leg with the safety pin.

WITHOUT SHAME.

When I reached her [illegible] was squeezing the flesh together and rubbing the liquid in brsikly.

Brazenly and without any shame she explained to me that she had lost her "needle" and had no money to buy another. So she took this means of getting the "dope" into her system.

That young girl was once the daughter of a respectable family. She attended a party given by some young girl friends. At the party someone gave her her first shot of "dope." It was taken in the spirit of fun, on the part of Grace. Little did she dream then that some day she would, without shame, bare her body to the gaze of passersby while she used a safety pin to inject the terrible stuff into her system.

WARNING TO GIRLS.

Grace is gone now. She will never use "dope" again. Perhaps she would still be alive today had she not taken that first "shot" in a spirit of fun.

Mothers, warn your daughters. Tell them about the evil. Keep on telling them. There is no other way. The "dope" peddler finds his way into all classes of society. He may reach your daughter next. Don't wait until it is too late.

(In tomorrow's American another article by Mrs. Callahan will appear).

GERRISH CALLS GIRL'S CHARGE FABRICATION

Captain James R. Gerrish, former superintendent of the House of Correction at Deer Island, now in his eighty-third year, declared before Judge Bishop and a jury in Superior Court that he had never laid hands on Lois Emma Stokes, as charged by her father in a $25,000 damage suit.

The Rev. George E. Stokes, chaplain of the institutions at Deer Island and Long Island, is the plaintiff. His daughter, Lois, testified that during the absence of her father, on July 3, 1921, Captain Gerrish came into her bedroom, seized her, kissed her and held her tightly.

The affair is alleged to have taken place while the Rev. Mr. Stokes and his daughters, Lois, Ruth and Esther were guests of Captain Gerrish at his cottage on Lake Attitash on the Merrimac-Amesbury line.

Counsel for Captain Gerrish declared the suit is a mere attempt on the part of the Rev. Mr. Stokes to obtain money from Captain Gerrish and that it would be shown that the alleged assault is "pure fabrication.'

Captain Gerrish testified that he did not know of any trouble until his attention was called to an article in a mercantile paper that his real estate had been attached for $25,000 by the Rev. Mr. Stokes.

He said the chaplain and his daughters had been his guests at his Summer camp for several days and that when they had left they had expressed their pleasure in terms of warm thanks and that they had not hesitated to say they would enjoy visiting the camp again.

PRISONER KILLS GUARD AND ESCAPES

Meriden, Ct., Dec. 11.—Alexander Hoag, 46, guard at the Cheshire Reformatory, was slain in a woodlot near the institution. A general alarm was sent out for Philip Rousch, 45, of New Haven, an inmate.

Hoag took Rousch to the woodlot to do some work. A search was instituted and Hoag's body was found with the skull crushed in.

DICTATORSHIP OF MUSSOLINI COMES TO END

Rome, Dec. 11.—To show the world that Italy is ruled by the will of the majority of the Italian people and to secure a Parliament which coincides with the wishes of the electorate; Premier Mussolini, with the consent of the Cabinet, obtained the signature of the King to a decree closing the present session of the chamber—an act which inevitably leads to dissolution and new election.

The Premier's bold, decisive step ends voluntarily his own dictatorship and re-establishes the Government along the usual constitutional lines. There is not the slightest doubt that Mussolini had the present chamber well under control; he had only to ask for full powers for another year, and these would have been granted by an overwhelming majority.

As little or no opposition was manifested against him, his retention of power could have been prolonged until the present chamber died a natural death in 1926, when by the constitution another election would occur automatically.

But the premier chose this time to prove that his rule was not derived from the lavish use of the big stick, or repression, but was based upon acceptance of his program by the Italian people as a whole.

SIX-FOOTER LEAPS TO DEATH IN RIVER

Lawrence Dec. 11.—An unidentified man, apparently about thirty-three years old, and six feet tall, committed suicide by plunging into the Spicket River from the Bennington street bridge. Police grappled for the body but all that they succeeded in recovering was a brown felt hat that the man had worn when he jumped from the bridge.

Several witnesses told the police they saw the man climb to the rail of the bridge and jump in. They did not secure a good description of the man in the darkness, however. Police continued to grapple for the body this morning.

WILLS DEFAULTS EXTRADITION IS PLANNED

Following the receipt by the District Attorney's office of information to the effect that Hamilton B. Wills, Toronto financier, who is charged with conspiracy to loot properties of the Boston-Montana Corporation and allied interests, would probably default the case against him, preparations were made for an International legal battle to extradite Wills and bring him to Boston.

The case against Wills is now ready for trial in Superior Court. This is the result of the conspiracy to steal indictments brought by the grand jury last April against Wills and seventeen other defendants, including Lieutenant-Governor William R. Allen of Montana. The case was to be called to trial this morning.

District Attorney Thomas C. O'Brien declared that he is convinced that Wills is still in Toronto and had no intention of appearing here for trial.

"Wills has been trifling with the Massachusetts courts and with this office for months," District Attorney O'Brien said, and he apparently thinks he can safely laugh at us up there in Toronto. To all practical purposes he is now in contempt of court."

BRICK THROWN INTO PULLMAN HITS 3

Three people were hurt when some person unknown hurled a brick through a window of a parlor coach on the Portland express as it was passing through Chelsea. When the train reached Boston two were taken to the Haymarket Relief Station. The third went off without making himself or his injuries known.

Ernest La Plant, of No. 26 Spring street, Lynn, was reported to be the most seriously injured. He suffered a laceration of the scalp behind the right ear and a laceration over the bridge of his nose. Mrs. Charles V. Coffey of No. 142 Leverett street, West End, received cuts on her neck from flying glass. Dr. E. J. Tierney of Dorchester attended Mrs. Coffey.

HAVERHILL SHOE WORKERS MAKE AGREEMENT

Haverhill, Dec. 11.—The shoeworkers of Haverhill will work five and a half days a week for six months of the year and five days a week the other six months, as a result of a joint conference which finished here today.

It was also decided to abolish the permit system, which the manufacturers said gave the union the right to send only such men as they saw fit to work in the factories.

Wage Cut for 8,000 Workers in Lynn

A wage cut reduction of 15 per cent., affecting 8,000 Lynn shoe operatives, and which is expected to result in the reopening of many Lynn shoe factories, was agreed upon at a twelve-hour conference in the State House.

The reduction became effective today. Present at the conference were representatives of the Amalgamated Shoe Workers of America, delegates from the Lynn Shoe Manufacturers' Association, five manufacturers not members of that association, and the State Board of Arbitration and Conciliation.

The reduction will continue in force until the wage question and other questions in dispute are settled by the State board. The same delegates met the State board today to outline all questions to be settled by arbitration.

MAINE REPUBLICANS ELECT FOUR MAYORS

Bangor, Me., Dec. 11.—Republicans nearly made a clean sweep in the four city elections held in this State, according to late returns.

In this city Charles D. Crosby won over T. Herbert White, a former sheriff of Penobscot County and Democratic nominee.

In Brewer, Frank R. Cowan, R., was elected mayor without opposition. In Westbrook, Charles S. Tuttle, Jr., R., was elected mayor over Eugene I. Cummings, D., by 28 votes. At Hallowell the Repblicans elected Charles K. Tilden mayor.

Hunting Set to Follow Hounds in the South, Says Betty Alden

(Staff Foto)

MRS. GEORGE BURROUGHS

A keen sportswoman of the Hamilton colony is Mrs. George Burroughs of "Green Meadows." Her winter residence is on Hereford street.

By BETTY ALDEN.

MORE colorful than ever was the military ball held at the Copley-Plaza the other night. The uniforms of the men, the gleaming jewels and shimmering gowns of the womenfolk, together with the gaily-colored flags, all helped to transform the state ballroom into a festive scene.

Slender Mrs. Ronald T. Lyman, under whose clever guidance the affair was carried out, wore a smartly simple gown of black, a band of silver lace across the skirt. Mrs. Anderson, the clever author of "Presidents and Pies" wearing black and gold brocade, received with Mrs. Lyman the first hour.

Another distinguished figure in the receiving line was stately Mrs. Frederick S. Whitwell, her gown of silver and blue brocade. Others who greeted the guests were Mrs. Walter M. Pratt in a youthful frock of white, as well as Mrs. Philip S. Sears, Mrs. Guy Murchie and Mrs. Andre W. Brewster.

AND still the giddy whirl continues, with the bud cohorts and their cavaliers keeping up the same merry pace.

Katherine Gray Cunningham

On tonight's calendar is the dinner which Mr. Richard DeBlois Boardman is giving in honor of Miss Katherine Gray, debutante daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Gray of Marlboro Street. After the dinner there will be a theatre party for the guests.

Katherine Gray is one of the most versatile debs of the season and both she and her brother, young Jimmie Gray, are among the best sailors of the Eastern Yacht Club.

TOMORROW comes the reception which the Rev. and Mrs. William H. Dewart are giving at the Hotel Somerset for their daughter, Miss Frances Dewart. The latter has just returned from Baltimore, where she attended the famous First Monday held at the Lyric.

THE hunting season may be over at the Myopia Hunt Club down Hamilton way, but not for all of the Myopians.

A crowd of those suffering most keenly from "saddleitis" have shipped their favorite mounts to the Lawrence Hunt Club in Virginia. There they will follow the hounds for some time to come, which means Christmas with a Southern setting, as they plan to remain well over the holidays.

Mary Curtis

Of those who have joined the Southern hunting party are Mr. and Mrs. Bayard Tuckerman, Jr., whose name is practically synonymous with sport; the Charles Sumner Birds, Jr., Mrs. Raymond L. Whitman, John L. Bowditch as well as the Misses Mary Curtis and Alice Thorndike.

Al of them are "to the saddle born" and all are prominently connected with sporting activities down Hamilton-Wenham way.

BOSTON SCHOOL FUND SHORT $3,615,567

With a shortage of $3,615,567 in the funds needed for school house improvements in Boston, the Boston School Committee may have to go to the Legislature to borrow money if the building and repair program is to be carried out, according to Chairman Lane of the School Committee.

Chairman Lane's statement was made following a meeting of the committee at school headquarters on Beacon street, at which every phase of the building and housing plans of the committee for next year were thoroughly gone over.

It appears that all the committee is allowed by law at present for next year for the improvements is $3,500,000, while a total of $7,115,567 is needed. This is made up as follows:

For various buildings throughout the city, $4,715,567; for the Roxbury High School, $1,500,000; for so-called West and North End relief $700,000 and to complete the Dorchester High School, $200,000. This totals $7,115,567. And to subtract from this total the $3,500,000 which is allowed under the law gives the $3,615,567 which is needed.

The School Committee inaugurated a radical change from the practice for the last fifteen years by passing, by a vote of four to one (Lane voting in the negative), an order allowing the re-entrance into the permanent service of teachers more than 40 and up to 50 years of age, and into temporary service after the fiftieth birthday and up to and including the fifty-fifth birthday.

CIGARETTE CAUSE OF AUTO DEATH PLUNGE

Lewiston, Me., Dec. 11.—Smoke from a cigarette so blinded George Sutton of this city that he drove his automobile through a railing near the Turner Village bridge, over a twenty-foot embankment and into the Androscoggin River, drowning a passenger, and injuring himself and another passenger.

George A. Parker, thirty-one years old of Auburn, a former member of the Auburn police department, lost his life.

Clarence Doone of Berlin, N. H., and Sutton cleared themselves from the automobile and succeeded in keeping their heads above the water until rescued.

Col. Roosevelt Called That "Young Fop" at "Dry" Rally

New York, Dec. 11.—The term "young fop" and other unkind words hurled at Assistant Secretary of the Navy Roosevelt from a platform on which Federal Prohibition Commissioner Haynes and Bishop William T. Manning had just finished speaking at a citizenship conference session on ways and means to obey the Volstead law.

The man who did the hurling was Fred B. Smith, chairman of the meeting.

TWO UNINJURED WHEN TRAIN HITS AUTO

A young man and a girl in an automobile drove through the gates at a Boston & Maine crossing in Everett and crashed into the rapidly-moving Yankee Flier from Portland, Me.

The gate tender and others who rushed to the mass of wreckage of the automobile could hardly believe their eyes when the young man and his girl companion picked themselves up, unhurt except for a few scratches.

The accident occurred at the Second street crossing.

Harold Wagner, No. 22 Intervale street, Revere, was the operator of the car. Riding with him was Miss Mina Jetney, No. 114 Grove street, Chelsea.

As the express train arrived at the crossing, travelling forty-five miles an hour, the automobile crashed through the gate, struck the first coach behind the locomotive, and was hurled a distance of fifteen feet.

Wagner said he had tried to stop when he saw the gates lowered, but that he had been unable to do so because of the slippery street.

Everett police arrived in an ambulance to learn that the supposedly injured persons had walked, without limping, to a drug store to make inquiries about a trolley car.

Members of the crew of the express train did not know of the crash until the train reached the North Station, where they telephoned back to Everett that someone had hurled a stone through one of the windows.

BOSTON 'TYPOS' HOLD DIAMOND JUBILEE

Business men, trade union leaders and veterans from all parts of the State sent congratulatory telegrams or were present with their wives and families at the Diamond Jubilee of Boston Typographical Union, No. 13, in the Copley-Plaza.

"Benjamin Franklin," patron saint of American printers, entered the dining hall followed by twin red devils as the first dinner course was served and was vigorously applauded by the devotees of the "Devil's Art."

The art of printing and the part the press has played in civilization were outlined by President Sylvester J. McBride. Sinon J. Nevins, past president of the union, was toastmaster.

Lieutenant-Governor Fuller, representing the Commonwealth, asserted his right to de facto membership in the union since his father was one of the first members of the union and had worked on two Boston newspapers. He spoke in high tribute to President Harding, also a printer. Governor Cox, unable to attend, sent a telegram.

Mayor Curley spoke of the good work of the American Federation of Labor, of which the union is a part.

LOVE POEMS OF ROMEO, 67, READ IN BALM SUIT

Schenectady, N. Y., Dec. 11 (By Universal).—"Farewell to ice—turn on the heat."

Such was the alluring last line of one of James A. Goodrich's poems to Miss Louise V. Dodge, who is now suing him for $150,000 for breach of promise. In her suit she refers to a "glorious Fourth of July," when the two were A. B. O. (all by ourselves) and had N. M. O. (nothing much on).

The first reference to the hectic love-making was read into the evidence when Goodrich's poem, "All by Myself"—was offered as an exhibit.

SNOW WHITE ROBES.

He referred to the incident of his visit to Miss Dodge on July 4, 1918, when the air was warm, when "Louise, so fair and bright," was "clad in her robes of snow white," when they were all alone in her apartment.

Goodrich is sixty-seven years old. Miss Dodge is fifty-four and doesn't look a day over forty.

At the session of the Supreme Court, being held before Justice John S. Crapser, Attorney Griffin offered a poem as "exhibit 41," which was a fervid imitation of that famous poetess of passion, Ella Wheeler Wilcox. Its reading convulsed the court, crowded to the doors with sensation mongers, and caused jurors to smile.

"VICTIM OF VAMP."

Letters were read showing the continued friendship existing between the two. Toward the close of the session Attorney Griffin questioned Goodrich as to his wealth and property. His own attorneys will cross-examined the defendant.

They go on the contention that Goodrich was a victim of a feminine vamp, whose only interest in him was to get hold of some of his money. They deny any affection save that of platonic friendship and will offer evidence to indicate that.

The new poem, uncaptioned and untitled, was as follows:

"Now I can say without a boast
That all your letters I do post.
And often mail them P. D. Q.
Enclosed in envelopes of blue
And sent direct to pretty Lou.

"Sometimes the answer seems so slow,
But you're a busy girl, I know;
But when it comes it's filled with spice,
And always something extray nice
Is written there for me alone
That sure would melt a heart of stone.

"Some other time perhaps I'll try
To send a slice of that July.
But that July I'll ne'er forget;
Warm memories linger with me yet,
For spite of heat and winter ice,
I surely thought it 'extra nice,'
And hope some day to it repeat,
Farewell to ice; turn on the heat."

Hit by Padlock Law

MRS. EMMA BERGDOLL.

Suits to padlock six Philadelphia saloons whose proprietors have either pleaded guilty or have been convicted of liquor violations were begun in the Federal District Court here. One of the defendants is Mrs. Emma Bergdoll, mother of Grover C. Bergdoll, fugitive draft dodger. She is named as the owner of the building in which is located one of the saloons which the government desires to close.

REFUSES TO BANISH KING OF GREECE

Athens, Dec. 11 (I.N.S.).—Colonel Plastiras, head of the Greek revolutionary committee, the real power behind the government, today refused the demand of the Republicans for banishment of King George until after the general election.

WIFE 'BUTCHER' IN COURT; HOLD 'OTHER WOMAN'

Milwaukee, Wis., Dec. 11.—The first definite action that will send E. Ray Tompkins to the hospital for the criminal insane or to a trial on a charge of first degree murder will be taken today in Municipal Court when he will be arraigned for killing his wife, Ora. Tompkins has confessed that he killed her and buried the headless body in an isolated spot near the city limits.

George A. Shaughnessy, district attorney, will ask for a commission to inquire into the sanity of the former normal school teacher, now a wealthy real estate dealer.

Miss Florence Witmeyer, former normal school student and former public school teacher, who was arrested on a statutory charge as a sequence of the murder, was freed in $500 yesterday. Tompkins, in his confession, repeatedly referred to Miss Witmeyer as his "inspiration." He first met her, he said, while she was his pupil at the normal school here.

BAY STATE TABLET UNVEILED IN CUBA

Matanzas, Cuba, Dec. 11.—A tablet to the memory of the men of the Eighth Massachusetts Volunteers who fell in the fighting around Matanzas during the Spanish-American War, was unveiled here. A delegation of citizens of Massachusetts, assisted by Cuban officials, took part in the ceremony. American marines and Cuban military forces also participated.

ACCUSED MEN ON STAND DENY POLICE MURDER

Henry T. Keefe and Jeremiah J. Horgan, who are accused of having fatally shot Patrolman Joseph E. Gonya in the Rearville section of Hyde Park on the morning of October 21, both testified before Judge Keating and a jury in the Superior Criminal Court.

While admitting hold-ups that occurred the night before, they denied any participation in the killing of Gonya. Keefe said he was not aware that Gonya was in pursuit of them, and after seeing one flash ran. Horgan, on the other hand, said several shots were fired, though they all seemed as one. He did not know, however, who fired them.

Keefe explained the finding of a revolver upon him, when he was arrested at Norwood, by saying that on the night of October 19 they had ridden with a man named McCarthy, who left the revolver in the automobile. Keefe took the weapon.

Both Keefe and Horgan declared "Red" McCarns drove the car on the morning of October 21, but they were sure he did not fire the shot that killed Gonya.

PARIS NEAR RATION SYSTEM OF MILK

Paris, Dec. 11.—Shipments of milk to Paris have so decreased that the authorities are considering a return to the wartime milk card system, giving preference to children, the sick and elderly people. The chief reason for the scarcity is farmers get better prices for their milk from the butter and cheese factories.

Young Women and Old Men Flock to Gland Clinic

San Francisco, Dec. 11.—An unusually large number of persons seeking restored youth and vigor was treated at the Gertrude Atherton Gland Clinic, which opened here last Friday. Dr. C. E. Wheeler, director, announced. Most of the persons operated on, he said, were old men and young women.

COOLIDGE AT ODDS WITH SEC. WALLACE

Washington, Dec. 11.—A rift is growing between President Coolidge and Secretary of Agriculture Wallace which may lead to the latter's resignation unless reconciliation is applied promptly.

The trouble arises from the fact that Coolidge and Wallace view the troubles of the farmer through different eyes.

Wallace insists the government should go to the rescue of the farmer just as it has helped the railroads and the merchant marine.

FIRE DESTROYS INN NEAR FALL RIVER

Fall River, Dec. 11.—The Riverside Inn in the town of Somerset, a few miles from this city, was destroyed by fire during a blaze which local firemen and those of Somerset were obliged to fight for about four hours. The building was a two and one-half story wooden structure, and the loss is estimated at $12,000.

SLAYER BALKS AT REVEALING CACHE OF $400

Rochester, N. H., Dec. 11.—Sumner Clow, self-confessed slayer of Samuel Huston, aged cattle dealer of North Barrington, was formally arrested on a charge of first degree murder, after Attorney Edward J. Galloway, his newly-engaged counsel, demanded that he either be arrested or freed.

Clow had been subjected to a grilling for hours by the authorities in an attempt on the part of the latter to induce Clow to reveal the hiding place of the $400 for which he admitted he killed the aged man.

Attorney Galloway was engaged as counsel for Clow by the latter's father, J. H. Clow.

Twice Clow had started to lead Deputy Sheriff Frank B. Callahan to the supposed cache where he had placed the $400.

And each time Clow halted in his tracks when he observed that he and the deputy sheriff were being followed by Attorney General Irving A. Hinckley and City Solicitor Elmer J. Smart.

The first time, Clow said the money was hidden in the Huston barn in North Barrington. The second time, he declared it was hidden in the woods behind the house.

"MOVIE-STAR MILL" RAIDED FOUR MEN HELD FOR FRAUD

Chicago, Dec. 11.—A "movie star mill," alleged to have promised its students it would make them photoplay actors and actresses in five weeks for $50, was uncovered here, when detectives arrested four men on charges of conspiracy to defraud.

Scores of school girls and middle-aged men and women had made initial payments of $5 on their tuition, detectives said. Use of the name of Miss Muriel McCormick, daughter of Harold F. McCormick, attracted many, it was said. It was represented to prospects that Miss McCormick had "signed up."

L. F. Callahan, president; W. B. Bower, vice-president; H. Black, secretary-treasurer, and J. F. Lilley, sales manager, were arrested and are being held in $1,000 bonds each.

New York.—Joseph Haller, commander of the Polish army, returned to New York today after an extended tour of the country, and was greeted by representatives of various veteran organizations and city officials.

GARLAND GRILLS GORDON IN SUIT

about putting it in the papers? A.—No, he said he would go to court.

Q.—Did you understand he was going to bring criminal proceedings against you? A.—No, I thought he was going to sue us.

Q.—For what? A.—For registering a married woman with a man.

Q.—But you didn't believe he did that? A.—Yes, sir, I had my doubts about Myer.

Q.—Did you ever see him register couples? A.—No.

Q.—Did you ever register guests. A.—Yes, when the clerk didn't happen to be there.

PERSUADED BY DOYLE.

Q.—And was that the reason Myer Berman also registered them? A.—Yes, to relieve the clerk.

Q.—You objected to paying such a large sum in settlement? A.—Yes.

Q.—Who was the person who finally persuaded you to pay your first share? A.—No person persuaded me. But Jim Doyle argued with me. I was hot-headed. I didn't want to listen to nobody. Myer Berman had been warned a million times to be careful at the hotel. My friend, Jim Doyle, told me to cool off and listen to reason. I said to Doyle: "I'll buy whiskey from you, Jim, but you can't tell me what to do with my money, or anybody else." Then Jim said that if the hotel license was lost, I would be as bad off as the other, and he took me down, and I began to think, and agreed to pay my share, to save the license.

Q.—How much were liquor licenses worth in those days? A.—About $20,000 or $30,000, according to how bad you wanted it. Hotel licenses were scarce then, in 1916.

Q.—So you agreed, with Berman, to pay over $35,000. A.—Yes.

BERMANS WHOLE SHOW.

The Bermans were the whole show, Gordon testified. They handled the money and the checks and everything, and Louis kept the books.

Q.—Did you know the combination of the safe? A.—Sure, I did, I kept the numbers on a card. The safe was taller than I am.

Q.—Did you have a key to the box inside? A.—Sure, and so did Myer Berman.

Q.—You said you were so tickled to have the case settled that you all kissed Mr. Coakley? A.—I didn't kiss Mr. Coakley. I never kissed no man. What I meant was, that we all felt like kissing him, because he settled the case. We had been losing $100 per day during the trouble at the hotel.

Q.—Why should you pay to settle this case if you had done nothing, as you say? A.—Well, for one reason, I wanted to save the license.

LOUIE'S LOVE AFFAIR.

Q.—Is there any reason why you should pay to settle Louie Berman's breach of promise case? A.—Yes, if you will let me, I will tell you why. Louie used to keep writing poetry to a girl in New oYrk and he got himself engaged. Mr. and Mrs. Berman didn't think it was a good match for Louie. They thought Louie was a wonderful boy, and he should get a girl with money. One time I bought Louie a coat from the hotel.

Attorney Garland broke in: "Never mind the coat go on with the testimony.

FIRE SPEEDER'S LICENSE GONE

jammed with children, so fast that he almost ran over a dozen, then skidded forty feet over lines of hose before he could bring his hose cart to a stop at the second blaze.

The incident was witnessed by one of Mr. Goodwin's inspectors, also an Everett Fire Commissioner, John H. Vanderhoff. He branded McHarg's driving as without possible excuse and promised on investigation by the Board of Commissioners. The registrar waited for the board to act. Failing to do, so, the registrar suspended McHarg's license.

Nov. 24, Driver Madden operating one of the new pieces of apparatus smashed into the motor car of Alderman Gunderson demolishing it. Reckless driving, he says, caused the accident. Everett had to buy the alderman a new car.

Nov. 25, another driver was in a bad collision with a piece of new apparatus.

Dec. 1, during the new White Way celebration when Everett's home folks were to review the new apparatus, Fireman Hill drove so fast toward Glendale Square he lost control of the car. It ran away. A panic stricken mob scattered as it flashed through the square, the driver unable to turn it right or left. Where the car came to rest hundreds of celebrants had stood less than a moment before.

December 4 a Boston department store truck was wrecked by an Everett fire truck.

"Those are a few of them," said Mr. Goodwin today. "There were other accidents. I have plenty of witnesses to prove my charges. Everett business men and police have complained repeatedly of their 'mad firemen.'"

Mr. Goodwin today asked Boston police to get as many citizen witnesses as possible when arresting drunken automobile drivers so that when their cases reach Superior Court on appeals the Department of Public Safety can assist in obtaining convictions.

It is part of the registrar's campaign to rid Massachusetts of alcoholic speedsters.

Ameriollo, Tex., Dec. 11.—Snow, driven by a hard, biting wind, is covering the Pan Handle. It is about three inches deep on the level and is drifting badly. The mercury is around 25 degrees. Train service is interrupted.

WILLETT GOES UNDER FIRE OF DEFENCE

George F. Willett today faces the start of a long, grilling cross-examination in the trial of his $15,000,000 suit against Robert F. Herrick and several Boston bankers who, he alleges, obtained the industrial properties of Willett, Sears & Co. by a conspiracy in connection with a $500,000 loan.

Barring interruption for the testimony of four other witnesses, Willett has been on the witness stand in Norfolk Superior Court in Dedham almost continuously in the proceedings which are in the sixth week.

A feature in the conclusion of Willett's direct testimony, under questioning by his counsel, Attorney Sherman L. Whipple, was his assertion that he signed a release relating to the company's industrial properties in the belief that, if he didn't sign, bankruptcy proceedings would be brought "with great loss to everybody concerned."

Willett further declared that in signing the papers, he relied on statements by S. H. Fessenden of F. S. Moseley & Co. Fessenden, Herrick and Robert Winsor of Kidder Peabody & Co. were made managers of the Willett Company properties as a stipulation in the $500,000 loan which was intended to meet certain outstanding notes.

"This loan, made by the Moseley and Kidder, Peabody Companies "and associates," under agreement of July 29, 1918, was required before a syndicate of Boston, New York and Philadelphia banks would make a further loan of $3,000,000 to carry on the Willett industrial program.

Willett testified that he did not know, when he signed the release papers, that "not more than $2,400,000 of the $3,000,000 was actually advanced by the banks."

GIRL'S GARTERS AN ISSUE IN BOY'S MURDER

Catskill, N. Y., Dec. 11.—Whether or not Anna Sobin, seventeen-year-old waif, wore garters to hold up her stockings, became an issue in the grand jury investigation of the murder of Howard Rothenberg, seven-year-old boy, who was strangled to death at Windham last August.

The girl, considered the star witness of the prosecution, went before the grand jury to testify, it was said, that she had not worn garters since she was eight years old, trusting the elastic band of her bloomers to hold up her hose.

Charles Rothenberg, father of the slain boy, charged that Anna was the slayer, basing his charge, he said, on the fact that a woman's garter was found near the body and that Anna had said she held up her stockings with safety pins.

One of the investigators had in some way obtained possession of one of Anna's stockings and there were no safety pin marks on it, Rothenberg said. The girl denied she had said she used pins.

One or more arrests are expected to be made today following the Grand Jury's report.

The investigation came to a dramatic close when the child's father announced he intended to lodge a formal charge of murder against Anna Sobin.

At the same time Rotherberg and his wife wrote a letter of protest to Governor Smith, charging District Attorney Charles G. Coffin was seeking to bring about the indictment of the boy's mother and her sister, Mrs. Esther Litt of Brooklyn, N. Y.

In the letter to Governor Smith, Mrs. Rothenberg said Coffin was acting on the theory that the boy had been slain to prevent his talking about what it is alleged were meetings between his relatives and men of the mountain community.

LABORATORIES TO SUCCEED CRIMINAL COURTS

SPECIFIC FOR CRIME NEAR

Scientific Gland Therapy, as Practiced in Boston, Has Immense Future

By GRACE DESCHAMPS

Will medicine "cure" a criminal?

Can a specific—which is medicine's name for a definite remedy—be formulated for murder or theft or arson?

Will the criminal courtroom give way to a bio-chemical laboratory, where every crime will be traced to glandular disturbances?

It's as definite promise of the future as was radio a few years ago.

It is scientific and based on scientific gland therapy. So declares M. Douglas Flattery of the medical commission of the Bureau of Conservation which numbers several of the most prominent physicians in the country. Under Flattery's direction, two of the most imporant clinics in the United States and each now engaged in making fact out of theory have been established at the Long Island Hospital in Boston.

DIAGNOSIS POSSIBILITIES.

Some of the possibilities of diagnosis and treatment in the field of glandular disturbances are hinted at by Flattery, who is at present compiling information for a volume on endocrine glands, which promises notable additions to the findings of previous workers in this branch of medicine.

"There is no question," says Dr. Flattery, "concerning the fact that there is a definite relation between personality and the endocrine glands.

"Disturbances of the endocrine glands are followed by disturbances of personality. The disturbance may make a man a genius or it may make him a criminal or an idiot.

"We have found which gland supplies certain qualities of personality. The adrenal gland supplies energy; the tworid, mental activity; the pituitary, physical growth.

"These three glands are the important three of the endocrines. They which decide a Henry Ford or an Oscar Wilde—the boy who clings to his mother and gets a medal in Sunday school, and the boy who lands in jail—the youngster who plugs hard and steadily at his lessons, or the brilliant genius who cannot be enclosed in book covers.

CAN BE CONTROLLED.

"They can be regulated and controlled. A certain glandular activity may predominate in each person, but under or over-activity which leads to undesirable traits of temperament most certainly may be lessened and a normal balance brought about.

"If a certain glandular disturbance makes a man violent in temperament, that violence can be subdued by proper regulation of the particular gland activity.

"Proper study of criminals from a physical standpoint would undoubtedly point the way to the cause and treatment of their ailment.

"In the same way, idiots and subnormals may be brought to a normal condition, or persons laboring under high nervous tension may be slowed down.

"In this, of course, as in any other scientific step, no sweeping generalization can be made which could be applied safely to any group of persons. Individual observation would be absolutely necessary to constructive treatment.

ONLY ON HORIZON.

"Quackery and the commercialized exploitation of so-called 'gland treatment' have hampered this new field which was open to seizure by unwarranted persons.

"Gland theraphy, however, in spite of this, is only on the horizon. When the physical, mental and moral make-up of an individual can be traced to the condition of his endocrine glands, we realize how much the future of civilization hangs upon them."

MRS. GUIMARES ATTENDS COURT WITH HUSBAND

MR. AND MRS. ALBERT GUIMARES

BROCKTON MAN LOST $3,030 IN STOCK DEAL

New York, Dec. 11 (By Universal)—Fiddling nervously with a little pocket knife, Albert Guimares, favored friend of slain Dot King, passed a most uncomfortable day in the Federal Court here as witnesses continued to pile up damaging evidence purporting to deal with fraudulent methods used by Norman J. Bosch & Co., a concern of which Guimares was president and chief dispenser of bosh.

Mrs. Albert Guimares, wife of the man on trial, also passed the entire day in court.

Guimares and his five associates, Henry Fields, William B. Kass, Frank B. Sheldon, Sidney H. Bennett and Walter W. Herzberg, are on trial before Judge Mack for using the mails to defraud.

Harry I. Howard of Brockton, Mass., a contractor, stated that last June he had received a circular through the mails from Norman J. Bosch Company, asking him to write for further information if he were interested in Friar's Gas, Fox Motors, New England Slag, American Gas Improvement, United Royalties and a number of other concerns, very few of which were legitimate.

New England Slag appealed to Howard's trustful eye, and he wrote for additional data. Through various phone calls, letters and a visit from Frank B. Sheldon, Howard testified that he was defrauded out of $250 the first time, $280 for expenses, and finally $2,500 on a grand slam.

For his money, Howard got absolutely nothing—not even the customary pretty stock certificates.

PROHIBITION IS INDORSED BY N.Y. BISHOP

New York, Dec. 11.—Bishop William T. Manning of New York told the citizenship conference that while he was not theoretically a prohibitionist, he believed that personal liberities should be sacrificed in order to observe the law.

"I have never held and do not now hold," he said, "that to drink wine or other intoxicants in moderation is a sin. I believe, nevertheless, that prohibition, properly enforced will make us a healthier, a stronger and better people."

Re-enactment of the State enforcement law, Prohibition Commissioner Roy A. Haynes said, would be of the greatest help in enforcing prohibition in New York where the expanse of water front made the task particularly difficult. He made a plea for co-operation by the State and Municipal authorities with the Federal government.

Fred B. Smith, chairman of the committee of 1,000, attacked Theodore Roosevelt, Jr., Assistant-Secretary of the Navy, for his reported anti-prohibition views. "He may rest assured that we will teach him the law as satisfactorily and with as much emphasis as his father would have done."

William Jennings Bryan and United States District Attorney William Hayward addressed the conference at its closing session.

ARGENTINA SHIPS $5,000,000 IN GOLD

New York, Dec. 11.—Ballasted by a ton of gold, over which [illegible] soldiers stood guard day and night, the steamship American Legion has arrived here with its precious treasure of $5,000,000 in bullion from Buenos 'yres. It is the first gold legally to be exported from Argentina since the war-time embargo and, according to Munson Line officials, the largest consignment ever to pass bettween the two continents.

NAVAL OFFICER DOUBTS PEARY FOUND POLE

Lakehurst, N. J., Dec. 11.—Two hundred and fifty naval officers and enlisted men at the air station here heard Captain E. B. Baldwin, Arctic explorer, question whether the late Admiral Peary discovered the North Pole.

Although Captain Baldwin had been invited here from Washington to speak on conditions to be faced by the dirigible Shenandoah when it flies into the North Polar regions, he devoted much of his talk to criticizing Admiral Peary's record, challenging statements in Peary's book, "Northward Over the Great Ice."

He also declared that Captain Bartlett, uncle of the present captain Robert A. Bartlett, who will head the navy's polar expedition, had questioned several statements in the book. He questioned Peary's calculation of swift polar ice drift and his unwavering lines to the Pole. Captain Baldwin concluded:

"The great Peary Arctic story is still untold."

QUACKS USED ROCKEFELLER COAT OF ARMS

New York, Dec. 11.—The impressive title "Rockefeller Institute of Chiropractice" and the coat-of-arms of the Rockefeller family will adorn the stationery and prospectus of a proposed school for chiropractice, now in embryo, and located in the offices of the Acme Stock Salt Company.

The school has a charter from Delaware and is one of five educational "Diploma Mills." The investigation is being conducted by the Pennsylvania State Board of Medical and Dental Examiners and by the attorney-general of New York State.

The name of Dr. Julius Speigel, Ph. D., was mentioned as the owner and organizer of the five institutions, and the address of the New York office of each was given as No. 11 West Twenty-ninth street. Two Brooklyn dentists were also named as interested in the schools, which have charters, in some cases, to issued diplomas in medicine, dentistry and other professions.

A search for Dr. Spiegel led to the Knickerbocker Building, where he is announced on the door as "Extension Director of the Cosmopolitan University."

Questioned concerning the Rockefeller Institute, Dr. Spiegel referred a reporter to David and Katherine Rockefeller of No. 460 Audubon avenue, as actual owners of the institute. Spiegel admitted that he had organized it for them.

Mrs. Katherine Rockefeller admitted that she, her husband and her brother, William J. McNulty, own the Institute, now represented only by a charter.

They said they intend to use the Rockefeller coat of arms.

368,500 PHONES IN GREATER BOSTON

The phenomenal development of telephone communication in America is shown by the fact that although the United States has only 6 per cent. of the population of the globe, it possesses 68 per cent. of all the telephones, according to New England Telephone & Telegraph Company.

In Metropolitan Boston the total number of persons living in the district covered by the telephone book, will be 1,660,000 on January 1, 1924. At the same time the number of telephones in use in this area will be 368,500, or a station development of 22.2 per cent.

WILL SUE WIDENER FOR REMBRANDTS

New York, Dec. 11.—A tentative offer by Prince Felix Youssopoff, once the richest man in Russia, to Joseph E. Widnener, Philadelphia millionaire and sportsman, for the recapture of the two famous Rembrandt portraits obtained by Mr. Widener has been refused.

A law suit to recover the portraits will be begun by the prince within three weeks if Mr. Widener persists in his refusal. Under the terms of the contract binding the two, through which Mr. Widener got the portraits, the prince has until Jan. 1, 1924 to recover them.

PURCHASING AGENTS DINE ON TURKEY

Four hundred members of the New England Purchasing Agents' Association, Inc., gathered in Horticultural Hall for their annual "Christmas Meeting and Frolic" and a Vermont turkey dinner. Each was the recipient of a Boston bag containing a dozen or more assorted gifts including a bottle of liquid soap.

With Charles E. Devonshire, president of the Association, and William B. Cummings, chairman of the committee of arrangements, presiding, fun and frivolity did not lag.

With a loud burst of jazz from a negro orchestra, each guest donned a bon-bon hat, tooted the tin horn at his plate, and started the serious work of the evening via the hors d'oeuvre.

Song and dance artists, trick musicians, impersonators, solo dancers, and vaudeville artists, to say nothing of the talent within the Association itself, provided the principal features of amusement for the evening.

YOUTH INJURED AS CARTRIDGES EXPLODE

The thumb and the tips of four fingers on the left hand of Johnny Bonnomi, 5 years, of No. 48 Bates avenue, Quincy, were blown off when he touched off glycerine cartridges with a match while playing in his yard. The police say that the little fellow obtained a box of the cartridges which are used in exploding dynamite. Eight of them exploded simultaneously.

TEACHER TO USE WIDOW AS AID TO PUBLICITY

Plans to Wrestle on Honeymoon and Live in Southern California

Fitchburg, Dec. 11.—John has chosen a career. He's going to be a professional wrestler.

John is no other than John A. Bennett, the twenty-six-year-old North Andover high school teacher, who is engaged to marry Mrs. [illegible] Ingalls, the sixty-nine-year-old North Dighton widow.

No flies on John. Says he: "I realize that my romance will cost me my job as a teacher. Newspaper publicity knocked that job in the head. But newspaper publicity is giving me a boost in another direction. I've decided to be a professional wrestler.

AMATEUR WRESTLER.

"I have done a lot of wrestling in an amateur way. With all the publicity I'm getting over my approaching marriage I figure it will be easy work for me to attract a big crowd if I put on a real show.

"Already three wrestling promoters in Boston have made me offers. I don't know which one I'll accept."

John said he had not told his bride-to-be of his plans. "But I know she'll be with me," he added.

GOING TO CALIFORNIA

After the wedding in North Dighton, John said, he figured on putting on several wrestling shows in the East and then moving across the continent to California. National City, California, a little town close to the Mexican border, is his ultimate goal, he told reporters here. John has a brother there who has invited the newly weds out to sunny Southern California for their honeymoon.

"When we get there I think we'll stay," said John.

VISITS BRIDE-TO-BE

The youthful bridegroom-to-be made a hurried trip to North Dighton over the week-end and then came here to the home of his sister, Mrs. Gertrude Gerry, No. 48 Jerry street. His visit here was a hurried one and he dashed off by taxi for North Andover.

Child In Role of Santa

H. A. SMITH, JR.

Santa Claus made his appearance in West Medford in the person of little H. Augustine Smith, five-year-old son of Professor H. Augustine Smith of Boston University School of Religious Education.

The tot, in careful imitation of the venerable saint, even to the snowy whiskers, distributed gifts to the forty guests of Professor Smith, members of the Fine Arts Club of Boston University, at the first of a cycle of Christmas programs and festivals to be given in churches, communities, and homes of Greater [illegible]

These programs will take the place of the annual Christmas demonstration given at the college by the students.

GEORGIA JAIL IS STORMED BY MOB

Macon, Ga., Dec. 11.—Communication with Mount Vernon, on which a mob was reported advancing to storm the Montgomery County jail where Bob Johnson was held in connection with the death of [illegible] Kersey, police chief of Hazlehurst, was cut off today.

Kersey was shot and killed Sunday when he attempted to arrest Warren Waters, wanted for breaking a prison parole. Johnson and James Cope were said to have been with Waters when the police officer fell with two bullet wounds. The three fled, but were captured yesterday by a posse.

When Sheriff Burch was informed the mob was approaching he ordered the three prisoners spirited from Montgomery jail.

SNOW REMOVAL COST HIT BY FIN. COM.

Contracts awarded by the Commissioner of Public Works for the removal of snow and ice from Boston streets during the present Winter are branded by the Finance Commission, in a communication to Mayor Curley, as unreasonably high and as being let to inexperienced contractors when, in many instances, experienced contractors are lower bidders.

XMAS CHEER FOR CRIPPLED CHILDREN

At a meeting held yesterday at the Industrial School for Crippled and Deformed Children on St. Botolph street, a committee was appointed, headed by Mrs. Timothee Adamowski, to prepare for the annual Christmas tree celebration for the school's students, many of whom will have no other Christmas than that provided for them by this committee. The expense of the Christmas tree and its decorations and of the distributed gifts, candy and oranges, is entirely borne by voluntary contributions. Those desiring to assist in this enterprise are urged to send their contribution to Mrs. Timothee Adamowski at 23 Chestnut street, Boston.

CHILDREN AIDING HARDING FUND DRIVE

School children throughout Massachusetts began the drive that is expected to net $200,000, which is Massachusetts' quota of the Harding Memorial Fund. The children started the fund off by pledging their candy money for the week, that they might enroll as members of the Memorial Association and thus receive the certificate which carries the late President's photograph.

HOLD NEGRO FOR SLAYING 24 WITH AXE

Police Believe Mystery of Alabama Crimes Solved in Arrest of Suspect

Birmingham, Ala., Dec. 11.—With the arrest of Fred Glover, negro, and the finding of a blood-stained hatchet and a pistol in his room, county officers believe that the long hunt for Birmingham's axeman has ended.

Glover was taken to the Birmingham General Hospital, where he was identified by Mrs. Edwin Sparks as the man who attacked her and her husband.

The hatchet had a short handle, making it easy to carry in the large pocket of overalls. Glover recently served a sentence on a charge of burglary and grand larceny.

Birmingham's axe assaults have claimed twenty-four victims. The attacks have run in three parallel series in which an axe or iron pipe has been used.

Fourteen have been killed and fifteen wounded in axe attacks on storekeepers; nine have been killed and three wounded in axe assaults on white men and women, and one has been killed and one wounded in the iron pipe assaults.

DORCHESTER DOCTOR ENGAGED TO NURSE

A romance between a young Dorchester physician and an Arlington nurse which originated in a Boston hospital, is brought to light by the announcement of Mr. and Mrs. John H. Kennedy of No. 13 Mt. Vernon street, Arlington, of the engagement of their daughter Katherine M. Kennedy to Dr. Joseph H. Carey, of No. [illegible] Adams street, Dorchester.

Dr. Carey, a graduate of the Tufts Medical School class of 1919, is well known in the Fields Corner section of Dorchester where he has his office. He is a member of the Alpha Kappa Fraternity of his college.

4 CONVICTS ESCAPE IN RAIN OF BULLETS

Lansing, Kan., Dec. 11.—While bullets from two guard towers rained down at them, four prisoners escaped over the north wall of the Kansas State Penitentiary.

A fifth convict, Charles Kavanitch, essaying his second escape from the institution, was shot down from the wall and captured.

It was the second delivery within eight days, thirteen prisoners escaping from the institution on December 2.

QUEEN MARY SHOPS EARLY AND WITHOUT CEREMONY

London, Dec. 11.—Queen Mary is doing her Christmas shopping early and the British public is following suit. Consequently the Yuletide trade in London is two weeks ahead of its last year's schedule and exceedingly brisk.

The formality once attendant upon the shopping trips of a royal personage have disappeared. Formerly equerries appeared, red carpets were hurried out and vehicles in the street were moved away.

Now, however, the favored store manager gets a telephone call, receives his patron at the door and is in attendance during the shopping expedition, but otherwise the establishment carries on as usual.

CABINET BACKS BALDWIN

London, Dec. 11 (A. P.).—The Cabinet met today at No. 10 Downing street to consider the result of the election.

In a report of the meeting the Exchange Telegraph says Premier Baldwin received assurances of support from the Cabinet and from the Conservative party generally, and that he therefore will continue at the head of the government.

The Daily Herald, Labor's organ, discussing what a Labor government could do if it took office with J. Ramsay MacDonald as Premier [illegible] program of domestic reforms. In the forefront of its foreign policy it puts full recognition of the Russian government and the calling of an international conference to deal with war debts, reparations and the Versailles treaty. To such a conference Labor would invite Germany, Russia and the United States.

BACKS BILLS TO SHUT OUT CODE 'HOGS'

Boston Men in the Delegation Calling on Him Protesting Broadcast Interference

By JOHN T. LAMBERT,
Cosmopolitan News Service Staff Correspondent.

Washington, Dec. 11.—Every radio fan in the United States today can count upon President Coolidge as an active friend of the campaign now being conducted through the Hearst newspapers to destroy the annoying interferences with radio broadcasting.

A delegation of distinguished radio scientists discussed the situation with the President.

They told him commercial radio competition today is cutting into the entertainment, diversion and instruction of millions of radio users throughout the country. Commercial broadcasters are intruding their personal business into the same wave lengths that are in common use of the average radio listener.

Silly love notes cross the path of important educational discussions.

"DEAR GEORGE" STUFF.

"Dear George" messages cut off the enjoyment of millions. Turtle dove notes from a sweetheart aboard ship to his sweetheart ashore cut into the ears of probably a million listeners who are being otherwise entertained.

These commercial companies could very well use other wave lengths, but they sacrifice the contentment of millions merely to get ahead of their competitors.

President Coolidge was informed that he himself had suffered from this system of unwarranted interference. A naval broadcasting station cut into the middle of his important address to Congress. Several hundred thousand listeners were cut off in New England.

Incidentally the radio scientists informed the President that he has an unusually clear radio voice which should stand him in good stead in the next few months.

President Coolidge has taken up the matter of "wave collisions" with Secretary Hoover. Bills designed to curb this nuisance will be presented by Mr. Hoover to the present Con[illegible].

BOSTON MEN PRESENT

The radio delegation which called upon the President was made up of Walter C. Howey, managing editor of the Boston American; George Burghardt, New York, president of the Radio Club of America; John V. L. Hogan, New York, past president Institute of Radio Engineers; John Shepard, 3d, Boston, vice-president of the National Radio Broadcasters, and Paul Godley, New York, vice-president of the Radio Club and probably the foremost amateur radio operator in the world.

Their specific requests were as follows:

That the Department of Commerce declare commercial use of the 450 wave to be malicious interference with the broadcasting and therefore effect a regulation requiring the cessation of 450 traffic, or to bring about an agreement between the operating companies that will result in the stopping of that traffic.

That radio be given the status of a separate bureau in the Department of Commerce.

That supervising listeners be appointed to prosecute the stations guilty of interference.

That Hoover's department be supplied with sufficient funds to enforce the already existing "anti-radio hog" laws.

DANCING IS BIG FEATURE IN 'LOLLIPOP'

By NICHOLAS YOUNG.

MUSICAL comedy is getting to be just one dance after another, with little or no breathing space between Saturday night departures and Monday arrivals.

Now comes Henry W. Savage with an artistic challenge and a band of merry, light-footed folk chasing at the heels of Ada May (Weeks) in a frantic endeavor to show that nimble toes and herculean endurance are more to be desired than a heavy score or a well trained chorus.

CLEVER DANCER.

In a cheerful bit of musical frivolity called "Lollipop," playgoers enjoyed a renewed glimpse at Ada May at the Tremont last evening, and willingly pressed a full measure of approval upon the young woman's dancing gifts.

The custom of turning dancing stars into musical comedy heroines found Mr. Savage well-equipped to carry forward in such ventures, giving the principal part of the task to Ada May, a slender graceful young thing, topped with a shock of pleasingly yellowish hair that was more tousled than restrained. And how that girl could dance. She may also, perhaps, take high rank as a singer, which we doubt, but there was nothing the matter with her other claims to artistic distinction.

With an engaging personality and a charm of manner that sparkled with its own colorful youth, she made it easy for you to forget Zelda Sears' conventional book and Vincent Youmans' rather pretentious composition.

QUAINT COMEDY.

With less than a week of active playing behind it "Lollipop" at times moved at an uncertain pace, starting slowly but catching up with itself in the second act and closing in a whirlwind of sensational dancing, in which, you may be told, Miss May performed royally. She was as exhilarating as the almost forgotten cocktail.

With the arrival of "Lollipop," came also its author, Miss Sears, in a comedy role—a return to her former art following several busy seasons of literary endeavor. She fairly oozed good humor. Among the dancing companions drawn into service to relieve Miss May were Nick Long, Jr., Gus Shy, Harry Puck, Leonard St. Leo and Virginia Smith—a formidable array of talent when you catch it in action—also a new group of Teller Girls from London, appearing in concerted dance numbers that caught the eye.

"Lollipop" is quaint entertainment, beautifully costumed and flanked at every turn with furious dancing. Ada May will make you like it, anyway.

PLAY OF FAR EAST AT ST. JAMES

"East is West," that delightful comedy-drama of the Far East, presented by the Boston Stock Company, drew a capacity house at the St. James Theatre last night.

Adelyn Bushness was superb as Ming Toy, the little Chinese girl. Her colorful portrayal of this difficult role drew enthusiastic applause from a warmly appreciative audience.

Adeyn Bushnell was superb as the young rich American sweetheart of Ming Toy, showed remarkable skill in his portrayal of this role. He was ably assisted by Houston Richards who, as James Potter, drew forth continuous laughter by his droll manner and consummate audacity.

Jill Middleton playing the part of Mildred Benson, Billy's sister, and upon whom Jimmy Potter showered all his attentions, captured all by her charming manner and pleasing personality.

Edward Darney as Charlie Yong, Mark Kent as Andrew Benson, the father of Billy, Anna Laying as Mrs. Benson, his mother and Ralph Morehouse as the butler, delighted all.

"DANCING AROUND" TAKES THE CASINO

"Dancing Around," a melange of terpsichorean numbers, songs, and fun, was the burlesque portion of the performance program yesterday at Waldron's Casino. The company which presented this burlesque is made up of stars selected from the vaudeville, musical comedy, and dramatic stages. Harry Steppe, veteran Hebrew comedian leads the company. Playing with him are Vic Casmore, character comedian; Buck and Bubbles, colored dancers and musicians; Sybil Gray, blues singer and daughter of California, and Elinor Wilson, prima donna. There is a chorus of pretty singers and dancers.

NEW MUSICAL PLAY AT THE COLONIAL

"Helen of Troy, N. Y.," a musical comedy fresh from Manhattan, moved to the stage at the Colonial last evening. George S. Kaufman and Marc Connelly, well known newspaper columnists, made the book and Bert Kalmer and Harry Ruby turned out the music. The story traveled from a collar factory in Troy to an artist's studio in New York, accompanied by much gaiety and melody. In the cast were Helen Ford, Queenie Smith, Tom Lewis, Joseph Lertora and Neil Carrington. "Helen of Troy, N. Y.," will be reviewed in Wednesday's Boston American.

Plays That Remain

SELWYN—George M. Cohan in "The Song and Dance Man." Sentimental comedy, with a dash of real drama.

SHUBERT—"Mary Jane McKane." A cheerful musical play featuring Hal Skelley and Mary Hay.

HOLLIS—"So This Is London." Mostly farce, in which Englishmen and Americans meet in merry conflict.

WILBUR—"The Lady in Ermine." Imported operetta, presented by a company of lusty singers.

PLYMOUTH—"The Love Child." Though not exactly a scarlet play, it shows a familiar French tint.

Remaining Films

FENWAY—Harold Lloyd in "Why Worry?" Mr. Lloyd's popular brand of comedy utilized in new ways.

MAJESTIC—Lillian Gish in "The White Sister." Spectacular picturization of F. Marion Crawford's popular story.

PARK—"Scaramouche." A popular romance of the French Revolution turned into an engrossing picture.

'POWDER RIVER' VIVID WAR FILM.

Who said "Let's forget the War?"

Any such ill-advised persons who wish to put from their minds that indomitable spirit, that gallant heroism which characterized the A. E. F., are asked to see "Powder River," the official U. S. Signal Corps filming of the vast drama enacted in France, now being displayed on the screen at Tremont Temple.

Cantigny, Chateau Thierry, St. Mihiel and the Argonne—names never to be replaced in the future memory of America. Instead of "Let's Forget the War" there is the hoarse cry of "Let's Go" and the swarm of khaki-clad figures clamber over the sandbags and advance over the shell-swept desolation of No Man's Land.

There are the German trenches [illegible] spitting death, even though the supporting artillery is playing havoc with their lines. There are the enemy airplanes swooping from above with their bombs.

Yet the camera cranks on—and the boys of the 26th Division still advance.

The most remarkable but gruesomely vivid sight occurs in the attack on St. Mihiel. A group of doughboys seek shelter in a great shell hole. Their charge has been temporarily stopped by barbed wire on the other side of the crater. At a given signal they pour from the shell hole and stagger on through the entanglement and the mud beyond with shells bursting in their midst. Many of them drop and lie strangely still. But they go on. One wants to get up in his seat and cheer—some do.

MOLLIE'S SHOW AT GAYETY

The queen of Columbia entertainers, Mollie Williams, opened in "Her Own Show" at the Gayety Theatre yesterday afternoon with one of the liveliest, most colorful and best gowned show she has ever had. A large audience welcomed this clever actress-producer with energetic applause. The show is in 15 scenes brimming over with gorgeous costumes, stunning girls and magnificent scenery. Miss Williams furnishes much of the entertainment at the head of a very capable and pleasing company.

Mollie Williams

The supporting cast includes Jack Walsh, Phil Adams, Bebe Almond, Frank Fanning, Kiara Hendricks, Wally Jackson, Al Lewis, Harry Rutledge and Ella Corbet. All are excellent in the roles assigned them. "Fate's Fire," a very dramatic playlet, is acted by Miss Williams and Mr. Fanning in a manner that would do credit to any of the recent exhibitions of dramatic acting.

"GREAT DIVIDE" AT THE SOMERVILLE

The Somerville Theatre Players last night revived William Vaughan Moody's "The Great Divide" and as was to be expected, was happily rendered. "The Great Divide" is good drama. It deals with things that are vital, fundamental and real. It is full of red blood, and it is as interesting as it is extraordinary. As Stephen Ghent, the diamond in the rough, Bernard Nedell gave a creditable performance, and in the difficult role of Ruth Jordan, Ann McDonald was adequate.

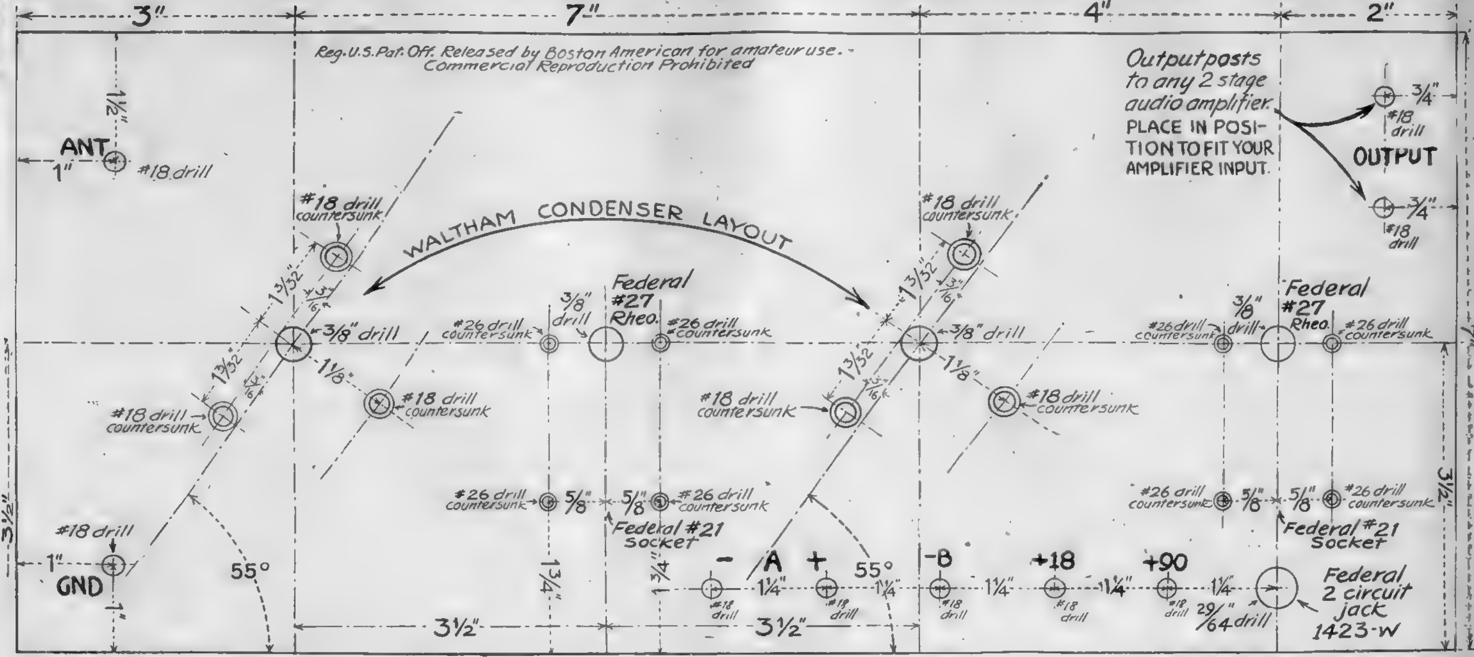
HOW TO PREPARE PANEL FOR SUPERNEUTRODYNE DETECTOR



THIS IS THE TEMPLATE FOR LAYING out the panel for the Superneutrodyne Detector unit. It calls for a panel 7x16 inches, of material either 1-4 or 3-16 thick. All the drill holes are spotted exactly except those for binding posts by which you connect the unit with your factory built 2-stage amplifier. These two holes should be about 3-4 inch from the right hand edge, and at the distance from the bottom of the panel to bring them exactly opposite the "Input" binding posts of the amplifier.

—Copyright, 1923, Registered U. S. Patent Office. Reproduction prohibited.

This is a [illegible] series on the Superneutrodyne family, starting the construction of the Superneutrodyne Detector, alias "Dick Super." Tomorrow we explain the circuit for Dick and tell you how to wire it and [illegible] stage amplifier.

By M. A. SIMMONS

Inventor of the Superneutrodyne

Copyright 1923. Registered U. S. Patent Office. Reproduction Prohibited.

The Superneutrodyne Detector unit, consisting of the detector tube and the radio frequency units on one panel, is precisely the "Baby Super" with three exceptions.

First, the panel is 7x16 inches, enlarged to take in the detector tube socket and rheostat.

Second, the five battery binding posts at the bottom of the panel are spaced 1¼ inches apart, that at the right, for the 90 volts B battery being centred 3½ inches from the right of the panel. The row of battery binding posts and the holes for the phone jacks are on a line ¾ inch from the bottom of the panel.

Third, the detector tube socket and rheostat, mounted exactly as the R. F. tube and socket in the Baby Super, are centred on the vertical line 2 inches from the right of the panel.

CHECK HOLE CENTRES.

Take the layout herewith and place it on the 7x16 panel and locate the holes as described in the Baby Super articles, which were purposely written with minute instructions to save repetition in every new Super description. It is well to say here that it is always wise to check with an accurate measure the location of drill hole centres you locate approximately with the template drawing. Errors might occur in the drawing that could not be checked until after publication in at least one edition.

These errors should be discovered, if they exist, before you drill a hole in the expensive hard rubber or bakelite.

As in the Baby Super certain special makes of condensers, sockets and rheostats are specified, but merely that exact spotting might be indicated in the drawings. Other makes may be used. The Baby Super articles told what to do if different make parts were secured. Those same instructions hold here, and hold in the articles to follow this. But don't buy the cheapest parts you can find, buy the most efficient. Any radio dealer can tell you how different manufacturers' goods compare for efficiency.

PARTS NEEDED.

The parts needed are: a panel of hard rubber ¼ thick and 7x16 inches, two condenser-coil units, Simmons coils mounted on Waltham or equally good condensers of from .00025 to .00035 mfd capacity, two rheostats, Federal No. 27 or similar resistance in equally good make, two panel mount sockets, Federal [illegible]1 or other good make, one two circuit jack Federal 1423 W or other make, ten binding posts, one .001 mfd phone condenser, either Dubilier 601 or as good, two Dubilier .005 mfd condensers bolted together, a grid leak condenser unit of .00023 mfd and one to 1.5 megohms resistance such as the Federal 120 and Federal 122 combination, and two four inch dials.

Combining the dope so far on the [illegible] Super with that already published for the Baby Super most amateurs will go ahead and make Dick correctly, and make him talk. But to make sure we will tell you tomorrow [illegible] and [illegible] Super and had only fine things to [illegible]

GLOOMY SALESMAN.

So that there are [illegible] complimentary [illegible] about the Super. If you encounter one send him to us. One particularly [illegible] type is the salesman of at least one radio store who can find nothing too harsh to say of the Super. He fails to see that [illegible] not the Super, but his boss and himself.

One such has been called to our attention. He is Charles Biles of the Cutter Wood Supply Company. In one breath he says the Super is no good and the next he declares [illegible] Andrew Sout[illegible] NYZ [illegible].

Of course [illegible] knows better [illegible] know better [illegible] the potentiometer [illegible] leaks [illegible] and the two stages of [illegible] amplification. You know [illegible] Super R. F. [illegible] and no leak in the R. F. [illegible]. Make Mr. Biles take out the potentiometer and the grid leaks and then make his set work.

At no time have we maintained that the Super is the only set that will not squeal or that will not re[illegible]. The standard radio frequency circuits won't reradiate nor will the three circuit regenerative circuits.

There are legions of them. But we have maintained and continue to maintain, that the Super is as simple in control as the simple one-circuit tuner and in addition won't reradiate, and won't spill into oscillation. It's easy to build, easy to tune and it can't squeal, that's the Super.

(Tomorrow comes the circuit of Dick Super.)

Material for the Dick Super

One panel 7x16 of hard rubber, ¼ and of bakelite 3-16 thick.

Two Waltham condensers and Simmons coils units.

Two rheostats, Federal [illegible] or other make same resistance.

Two panel mount sockets, Federal 21 or similar.

One two-circuit jack similar to Federal 1423 W.

Two Dubilier 601 condensers .005 mfd, each bolted together.

Ten binding posts.

One grid condenser .00023 mfd, with leak mount, similar to Federal 120.

One tabular grid leak 1 to 1.5 megohms, similar to Federal 122 [illegible].

One Dubilier 601 phone condenser .002 mfd.

Two four inch dials.

Four lengths of square tinned busswire.

Petition to President

TO the Honorable Calvin Coolidge,
President of the United States:

We, the undersigned radio broadcast listeners, respectfully call your attention to the serious interference to radio reception which is caused by remediable factors. We petition you to take action to have this interference stopped.

Paste additional paper on this petition, sign it, get your friends to sign it and forward to the Radio Editor, Boston American, 80 Summer street, Boston 8, Mass.

Radio Queries

Due to failure of some [illegible] to insert a column rule between the two halves of the description printed over the Baby Super [illegible] diagram in some early editions [illegible] If you get one of those editions [illegible] the four column measure and [illegible] down through the following lines thus separating the halves, then read down the resulting two column measure on one side first then the other. That developed the mess. We're sorry it happened. That's one of the reasons we are getting prematurely gray. This is in answer to Wilbur S. Downs of Hyde Park. Also for Mr. Downs, forget the November series. Go by the present Super series.

Radio Editor:

I have been reading notes on the superneutrodyne that you have printed in your paper and find the inventor was M. A. Simmons and I would like to know his address.

William L. Kelman, No. She[illegible] [illegible], Providence.

There are hundreds of working Supers in Providence and vicinity. We would appreciate it if owners of these sets living near Mr. Kelman, look his over and show him where his mistake is.

Radio Editor: I would like to know whether I can use a 23 plate and a 43 plate variable condenser on the baby superneutrodyne set, as I am going to make one. Yours truly,

Sure Way To Get Rid Of Dandruff
USE LIQUID ARVON

There is one sure way that never fails to remove dandruff completely, and that is to dissolve it. This destroys it entirely. To do this, just get about four ounces of plain, ordinary liquid arvon; apply it at night when retiring; use enough to moisten the scalp and rub it in gently with the finger tips.

By morning most if not all of your dandruff will be gone, and two or three more applications will completely dissolve and entirely destroy every single sign and trace of it, no matter how much dandruff you may have.

You will find, too, that all itching and digging of the scalp will stop instantly, and your hair will be fluffy, lustrous, glossy, silky and soft, and look and feel a hundred times better.

You can get liquid arvon at any drug store and four ounces is all you will need. This simple remedy has never been known to fail.

GENE TUNNEY BEATS HARRY GREB IN FURIOUS 15 ROUND BOUT

SOLDIER GETS VERDICT AND RETAINS TITLE

By ED CURLEY

New York, Dec. 11 (Universal).—Gene Tunney, the American light-heavyweight champion, retained his title in his fifteen-round fight with Harry Greb at the Garden. There was no question as to the decision.

Tunney took the lead from the start and was never in difficulty. It was a duel of a relentless left hand to the body against the tactics of a rough, wild fighter. Tunney never let up in driving his left to Greb's body.

That attack proved a success, for he wore Greb down pitilessly. The funny thing about it all was the hooting of the crowd. A few of the gallery gods started it and a lot of others took it up.

Many of the hooters really didn't know what it was all about. This marked the third clash of the pair and Tunney has two victories to his credit, which should end the battling.

Tunney looked drawn and weighed 175 pounds; Greb tipped the beam at 171½, and was fat and grinning. It looks from this as if Greb will have a tough time making the middleweight limit. Tunney never changed his body battering and that won him the honors.

Roland Todd, the British middleweight champion, made his debut against Tommy Loughran of Philadelphia in ten-round semi-f[illegible] Todd weighed 159¾ pounds, while Loughran was [illegible] pounds heavier. This handicap told on the Englishman and he blew the decision. Todd is a clever boxer and with a few more fights will be heard from.

The crowd totaled 11,079 and it turned over $43,016. This was pleasing to promoter and fighter.

Close to 12,000 folks witnessed the fracas.

There were many talks of Tunney's shape and ability. There was much wagging of heads as regards the condition of Greb. The speculative gentry whereazed and resolved that Tunney was the better man, Gunga Din. Therefore the odds started to ascend the wagering thermometer until Tunney ruled a 3 to 1 favorite.

Mike McTigue Among Those Present

In the front row we noticed "Doc" Kearns, the genial and handsome manager of Dempsey. The "Doc" was hoping some of the boys would grow large enough to fight the champ and help him pay his income tax. Then there was Mike McTigue, who was matched to fight Tunney, but postponed it on account of a bum mitt.

When Master of Ceremonies Joe Humphrey showed his silvery locks to the crowd he beamed benevolently and said that Georgie West of England would fight Frank Sobey of Brooklyn four rounds. The lads did as Joseph forecast and Georgie won.

Then came along Arthur Cutter of Washington Heights and Frank Moody, of Wales. Cutter wouldn't fight so Referee Magnolia put him outside the ropes after the third and said 'twas no contest.

So the management called for an emergency four round bout and Jimmy Clyde and Willie Ackerman responded. Clyde got the decision, but Ackerman was just as happy for he made some unexpected dough for Christmas.

LOUGHRAN GETS VERDICT FROM ENGLISH CHAMP.

Rollo was attired in red trunks. He couldn't duck that left of Loughran's. Rollo led persistently for four rounds. Rollo whipped over a dashing left now and then. Something must have riled Rollo in the fifth for he gave the blawsted Yankee a hard beating. The sixth and seventh were busy rounds, with Rollo skipping hither and yon.

The last three rounds were featured by classy boxing. In the final period Loughran drove a right to the body and the impetus sat Rollo on his haunches. The crowd cheered vociferously. Rollo swabbed Loughran with a few nifty left hooks and the round ended. The announcement that Loughran won was cheered loudly. Along came Greb and Tunney and everything else was forgotten.

MICHIGAN TURNS DOWN NAVY GAME

Annapolis, Md., Dec. 11.—The Navy and Michigan will not meet on the gridiron next Fall. The Wolverines were compelled to turn down the Navy's invitation to a game here on October 11. Michigan has a hard game scheduled with Illinois one week later and Coach Yost thought his men should not go journeying.

CLEVELAND SAND LOT STAR FOR SOX

J. Conway's Average As Proud Father Is Now 1000

Jack Conway, world's champion picker, was right again. It's a boy, just as Jack hoped it would be. Jack admits that the youngster is world champion of the eight-pound class, and is willing to match him with anybody, for the Christmas Basket Fund. Jack also says it's much easier to pick winners than it is to pick up babies.

TURNER EAGER TO ROUGH IT WITH STASIAK

Wrestling fans who will be up at the Grand Opera House Thursday night to see Dakota Jack Turner lock horns with Stanley Stasiak, the Lion of Poland, will be interested in a letter the writer received from the manager of the Dakota Whirlwind. In substance, it says:

Joe Turner.

"Why can't it be arranged to stage the match without a referee? The Pole's work the last time was very unclean and his attack upon the referee was entirely uncalled for. The Dakota Bearcat thinks he can make the big Pole call his own falls. At any rate, if there is a referee handling the bout open rules should at least prevail. Nothing barred but the strangle hold.

"Arm strangles, finger locks and all kinds of rough stuff to go. In addition, make this match winner take all."

That is the sum and substance contained in a letter received from Dakota Jack and his manager. It goes to show just how confident they both are of winning the match and just what kind of a match they expect.

Stasiak is training as he hasn't trained so far this season. He realizes what he is up against. This is the first invasion of the Western grapplers against the East and it is a lead pipe inch that they are sending a real one along and have him fit and ready for the job or he wouldn't be sent at all.

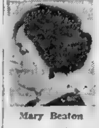
Nick Bozines, the Greek star who appears against Charlie Marshall, the Rough House French mat artist, is daily training with Stasiak. The match between this pair is a grudge affair and one that has the fans guessing as to the outcome. John Kilonis, Greek international champion, will have his hands full with Bill Rudy, the scissors hold artist. This boy has a wonderfull pair of legs and his work on the mat is sure to please the fans who gather to see him.

The management may stage another bout to give a wrestler who is demanding matches a try out.

WOMAN ATHLETE DEFERS TO MERE MAN

New York, Dec. 11.—Women, particularly those of the athletic type, here is a sad story for you. You will never compete with men in any athletic event on an equal basis. That, at any rate, is the way Miss Mary Beaton, professional English swimmer of considerable repute views it. She arrived here on the liner Pittsburgh. She was asked if she thought women swimmers would ever really compete with men swimmers. Here's her answer:



Mary Beaton

"No, emphatically no. Speed swimming has a terrific effect on the heart, and would be particularly dangerous to women. Men suffer, too, but they have more endurance. I do not believe that women will ever compete with men in any athletic event on an equal basis."

COUNTRY'S BEST SKATE AT LEXINGTON

The United States Olympic skating team will be seen in action on the specially prepared rink of the Lexington Outdoor Club at Lexington, on Dec. 22. Their appearance here is their first in New England. Trial events will be run under conditions as near those to be found at Chamounix in the French Alps as can be made.

Chamounix will be the scene of the World's Olympic winter sports competition on Jan. 26 and 27. Six of the foremost amateur speed skaters in the United States will be seen at Lexington. Four of these skaters will make the trip to France.

The retinue of skaters includes Charles Jewtraw of Lake Placid; Bill Steinmetz, Joe Moore of New York; Harry Kaskey of Chicago, Richard "Duke" Donovan of Chicago, and Valentine Byalis of Lake Placid. The last two skaters named have been designated as alternates on the team.

Therefore as the events at Lexington are designated as trial events it is quite possible that Donovan and Byalis may win regular berths on the team. Similar trials to those held at Lexington will be staged at the 181st street rink and Iceland Palace in New York on Dec. 17 and 20 respectively; at Pittsfield, Mass., on Dec. 23, 24; Lake Placid, N. Y., Dec. 26; Saranac Lake, N. Y., Dec. 28 and at Newburgh, N. Y., Jan. 1. They sail for France on January 2.

The rink at Lexington is six laps to the mile which is the regulation size for Olympic events. The events are sanctioned by the International Skating Union of America and awarded to the Lexington Outdoor Club by the New England Skating Association.

CHAPMAN BEATS ROMEO ROACH

Red Chapman of Chelsea won a close decision over Romeo Roach of Holyoke in the feature 10-round bout at the Lynn Casino A. C. Chapman came strong in the closing rounds.

His rally got him the verdict, as the bout had been even up to ninth.

Young Rose of Lynn, a substitute, knocked out Al Corbett of the West End, Boston, in the sixth round.

Eddie Boyle of Buffalo defeated Johnny Marto of Boston, and Young Leonard of Chelsea won from Eddie Mullins of Providence in six.

McCARTHY'S RIGHT MAY PUT WILSON OUT

By RINGSIDE

Pat McCarthy's best chance of winning over Johnny Wilson, former world's middleweight champion whom he meets in a ten-round bout at the Armory A. A.'s show at Mechanics Building on next Tuesday night [illegible] in his right hand.

Wilson, a southpaw, is hard to hit with a left hook, but he is wide open for a right hand punch to the jaw. This is true of all southpaws.

When Sam Langford was in his prime fourteen years ago, Joe Woodman matched him to battle a big southpaw out West. It was the first time Sam had met a portsider. After his opponent had scored with some healthy belts, Langford said to Woodman between rounds:

"I'll get this fellow the next round. When he leads with his left, I'll shoot my right for his jaw. And he'll go out."

And this is just what happened. Other fighters followed Langford's system of battling southpaws.

McCarthy, a great righthand puncher, is of the opinion he will knock Wilson out inside of eight rounds. If he keeps shooting for his opponent's jaw with right-hand thrusts, he may accomplish this result.

Doc Barry of Cambridge has been engaged by Manager Jim MacDonald to train McCarthy. This means trouble for Wilson.

Barry trained George Robinson for his bout with Wilson at Montreal and was later in the Cambridge negro's corner when he knocked Johnny down four times. He also prepared Robinson for the first tussle with Wilson at the Arena in which event he counted with one knockdown.

Secretary Ivey Lewis of the Armory Club, with a downtown office at room 7, No. 61 Court street, says that in his thirty years of experience with big boxing shows he has never seen such tremendous interest in a bout as there is in the meeting between Wilson and McCarthy.

The fact that Wilson and McCarthy are surrounded by a brilliant preliminary card has added interest to this great show.

Eddie Record of Nashua, N. H., and Whitey Allen of Hyde Park will mingle in the semi-final of ten rounds. These men recently furnished one of the most sensational bouts ever witnessed in Boston.

VAN FRENCH TO TRY HAND AT BASKETBALL

Van French, 1924 football captain, reported to Coach Sample yesterday at the Goddard gymnasium for the first basketball work-out. Van is a candidate for the pivot position and likely to win a varsity berth.

Chris MacMinagle and Roselli are the other prominent candidates for the center assignment. With these three stars on hand Coach Sample will have a hard time trying to choose the best player.

Van French

Four letter men are eligible: Captain George Rogers and Jack Wilson, guards, "Al" Evans and Joe Mahoney, forwards. Several other candidates are making strong bids for their positions. Begosian and Barrows are two capable guards who may get a chance to show their wares against the regulars.

Jack Wilson, who is rated as one of the best guards that ever donned a basketball uniform at Tufts, will play his last season for the Jumbos. His dazzling pass work featured the work of the Medfordites last season.

Red Sox Will Train at San Antonio Next Spring

Chicago, Dec. 11.—President Bobby Quinn of the Red Sox announced that San Antonio, Texas, had been selected as the Boston team's training quarters next Spring.

The Giants have trained at the Texas City for several years. Maybe the Red Sox hope to catch the pennant habit.

Vermont for Hockey

BURLINGTON, Vt., Dec. 11.—Students at the University of Vermont have voted to adopt hockey as a major sport in preference to track.

EDDIE COLLINS LIKELY TO MANAGE SENATORS

Chicago, Dec. 11 (By A. P.)—Eddie Collins, premier second baseman of the American League and captain of the Chicago White Sox is for sale or trade and may become manager of the Washington club for the 1924 season.

Frank Chance

Frank Chance, newly appointed manager of the White Sox, made the startling announcement that Collins had been cast into the player market.

This announcement was the most important to come from the convention of more than 1,200 baseball leaders who assembled here today to set their house in order for the 1924 season.

Clark Griffith, president of the Washington club, while not denying that he had talked over the prospects of landing Collins, intimated that he was in a receptive mood. He declined to make a flat statement, saying: "I can't say a thing yet."

Collins will be one of the last two players who remained on the club wrecked in 1920 as a result of the world series scandal of 1919.

The big convention opened today with half a dozen meetings, including a session of the board of arbitration of the National Association of Minor Leagues which threshed out the dispute over the presidency of the Pacific Coast League.

The National League, the Southern Association and the International League were the only organizations that succeeded in accomplishing any business.

The National League broke all attendance records during the 1923 season according to a statement of President John Heydler. Actual figures were not announced, but Mr. Heydler said the former record made in 1920 was surpassed.

The league also used more baseballs this year than ever before. Mr. Heydler stated [illegible] dozen balls were tossed into the field during the last season.

The pitchers of the National League will go on their merry way without any leeway through the use of rosin or other foreign substances as the result of action taken today.

Charles H. Ebbets of the Brooklyn club introduced a resolution for discussion empowering the use of rosin on the ball, but stiff opposition developed from Branch Rickey of St. Louis and he was staunchly supported by Christy Mathewson of the Boston club. The League finally voted to take no action and to leave the rules relative to pitchers unchanged.

The board of directors of the American League, meeting here today, formally awarded the 1923 league championship to the New York American League club and voted to give individual awards to George Sisler and Babe Ruth the two players decided to have been of greatest value to their clubs in 1922 and 1923, respectively. The form of these awards was not decided on.

The board also sent a message of condolence to the relatives of "Wild Bill" Donovan, who was killed in the Twentieth Century wreck at Forsyth, N. Y., yesterday, and decided to continue to care for Louis Criger, catcher of the Boston club, until he is restored to health. The board will meet again tomorrow.

President Baker of the Philadelphia club endeavored to have an amendment passed that would prevent home runs being declared on any balls that bounded into the bleachers.

OWEN HAS FIRST CHANCE TO FACE B. C.

Boston College's big hockey following will see one of the most [illegible] hockey workers in action tomorrow night at the Arena when [illegible] Groden plays [illegible] for the Eagles in the game against the Boston Hockey Club.

This tow headed youth has [illegible]

George Owen

Groden is a tireless worker and a [illegible] for worrying the opposition. The defense is new to the Cambridge boy, but in practice sessions at the Arena he appears right at home in front of the net.

Coach Fenton has Frank Mahoney and Ed Mullowney for the other defense berth. The brilliant [illegible] Fitzgerald will be in the net.

In all his college career at Harvard George Owen never opposed a Boston College athletic team. B. C. rooters have compared their athletic stars with the Crimson's great ace, but there never has been a [illegible]. This adds to the attractiveness of the game at the Arena tomorrow night.

DOYLE AND HIRSH CLASH IN ARMORY A. A. RING TONIGHT

WALKER BOUT GOAL OF RILVAL WELTERWEIGHTS

By JACK CONWAY

Paul Doyle, one of the chief contenders for Mickey Walker's title, and Vic Hirsh of Chicago are in town and in the best of condition for their ten-round bout at the Armory A. A.'s show at the Grand Opera House tonight. There is great interest in this match, and it is expected that a capacity crowd will be on hand to witness the affair.

Doyle, always a big Boston favorite, has been named by the New York Boxing Commission as one of the three leading contenders for Walker's title. The other two are Jimmy Jones and Dave Shade.

Doyle, fast, brilliant boxer and deadly puncher, rules a slight favorite in the betting. Hirsh, however, has plenty of supporters. Vic has shown to advantage in all of his starts in this city. In his last appearance here he walloped Jack Schoendorf.

Doyle is a better boxer than Hirsh, but he is not as good a puncher. Vic also keeps going forward every second he is in the ring much like Nate Siegal did when at the height of his fighting form.

The winner of tonight's quarrel will probably be matched to meet either Dave Shade or Jimmy Jones in a bout here.

There will also be three eights. Paul DeSalvo will clash with Dusty Dumont of Biddeford, Ernie Sawyer of the North End will oppose Frank Merna of South Boston, while Benny Nelson of Lowell will collide with Georgie LaBate of Brockton.

Jim MacDonald writes:

"I have secured Charley Barry to train and get Pat McCarthy in shape for his coming fight with Johnny Wilson on next Tuesday night.

"Barry has trained and handled Harry Greb, Herman, Mike and Tom Gibbons, Fulton, Renault and about every good man in the country, and I feel that he knows Wilson's style and ways better than any other boy, and it's no secret, that Wilson would rather see any one else in the world, in a corner against him, than Barry.

"Barry handled Robinson in Montreal when George had Wilson down four times, also handled George last year when Robinson had him down in the first round. We both feel that McCarthy will not only beat Wilson, but will stop him inside of six or eight round. Watch how close we come to our guess."

Charley Barry writes:

"On Tuesday Wop Manoleum boxes K. O. Leonard at Hartford, Conn. The Wap beat him a week ago.

It was a slugging match, so they want it back. They wanted Manoleum to box Ferguson three days later in New Haven, but the commissioner insists so, it's on for the following show. He also boxes the best boy the club can secure at Holyoke on the 22.

"I have also matched Tommy Curley of Gloucester to box Joe St. Hillian at Portsmouth, N. H., Dec. 14.

"The wop is a great card in Connecticut and will be getting big money there soon."

All roads will lead towards the National Athletic Club, Marieville, R. I., tomorrow night, where Willie "Young" Gradwell, New England's premier lightweight, will swap punches with Alex Hart, the sensational Philadelphia lightweight for 12 rounds. This is one of the best lightweight cards arranged for the Rhode Island fans this season and the fans will turn out in big numbers to see these two sterling lightweights in battle.

Alex Hart has been one of the new sensations in the lightweight ranks the past season, and his great battles with Bennie Leonard and Lew Tendler have been the talk of the slow town fans. The new fistic light has also won easy decisions over Joe Tiplitz, George K. O. Chaney and Rockey Kansas. The Philadelphia fans figure him the next lightweight champion of the world. As Lew Tendler has been going back the Philadelphia sports and promoters are grooming him for the lightweight crown.

Willie "Young" Gradwell has been one of the most consistent winners in the lightweight ranks the past year, having defeated every good lightweight in New England, and also winning a great battle over Bobby Barrett, the other Philadelphia sensation. The Somerville youth has won his last twenty-seven starts and if he can secure a win over Alex Hart he will be in line for some big matches throughout the country. Jack Zalive, the crack Milwaukee lightweight, will meet some good boy in the semi-windup.

Jack Conway Picks Doyle to Win Over Hirsh

Jack Conway, holder of the world's record of picking winners (a nine-pound baby boy was the latest), hands out the following dope on tonight's Armory A. A. show at the Grand Opera House:

"Paul Doyle, brilliant boxer, sharp, damaging puncher, is my selection to win over Vic Hirsh. This should be a great battle. Doyle has the speed and hitting power, Hirsh aggressiveness and a kayo wallop."

Jack has picked 118 winners out of a possible 171 this year.

FORTY OUT FOR BASKETBALL AT B. C.

About forty basketball candidates reported to Manager J. Burke Sullivan at the St. Mary's gym, Cambridge, for the first practice of the Eagle's season in the minor sport. Boston College has been severely handicapped for many years by the lack of a home court with the result that the games arranged by the manager are for the most part to be played out of town.

Ted Coady, who directed the affairs of the squad for the past three years, has again assumed duties as coach, and hopes with the material at hand to turn out a championship club.

Among last year's letter men are Captain Jim Hickey, Ed Malloy and Ed Morgan, ex-captains; Ed Mackey, Joe Mcinnan, Eddie Harrison. The new material has proved to be abundant with the freshmen contributing Kamel Hassan, Frank Sullivan and Owen Murphy.

Here's How to Get a Kick Out of Xmas--Kick In

By GILL.

Going up.

The Sporting Department Christmas Basket Fund took another healthy jump yesterday with a total of $259.27 for the day.

This is fine, but it isn't enough. We want more—a whole lot more and we want to get it early.

The collections are keeping the fund up but we want a long list of individual names on the "Kick-In" roster.

The boys and girls at the Medford-Norwood football game dug right down deep into their pockets to the tune of $121.02, which is quite some sum.

Down in Peabody $31.11 was contributed, while genial George W. Brown, who manages the Boston Arena, made it possible for $102.14. Mr. Brown was assisted by a bevy of handsome young ladies who volunteered their services for the cause.

Eddie Mack, who has more real fighters in his stable than Heinz has beans, came down, looked over the list and remarked "here's fifteen, put my name up near the top. The fight game is kind of quiet just now, but anything for the kiddies."

Anonymous sent in a check for $5 with his best wishes.

Two weeks from today and it's all over,—so come on—KICK IN.

You're all doing finely, but we are just greedy enough to holler for more.

Just send in a few pieces of silver or bills and see all the nice things we can say about you.

It's worth trying. Take a chance. Just a little gamble—Kick In.

JIM BARNES HAS A NEW DAUGHTER

New York, N. Y., Dec. 11.—Jim Barnes, former open golf champion of the United States, and Mrs. Barnes announce the birthday of a daughter, Caroline Mary, born December 3 and doing well ever since. Jim was down town today telling the glad news to the boys in the golf schools and shops. Jim declared his child would probably never win the open but that she might take the woman's some day.

ARLINGTON GIRLS IN SCHOOL LEAGUE

The Arlington High Girls' basketball team will be a member of the Greater Boston Interscholastic League. The opening game will be played Friday, January 11, with Watertown.

NICK ALTROCK TO DO HIS STUFF

Nick Altrock, funny man of baseball, and Al Schacht, his comedy partner, are planning on staging the same mirth-making stunts which made such a hit at the world's series games in New York, when they come here as an added attraction to the basketball game between Nick Altrock's All-Stars and the Boston Whirlwinds.

Altrock will appear at Mechanics Building a week from tonight, and followers of both baseball and basketball are planning to get a closeup of the diamond comedian when he makes his indoor bow here.

While Altrock has been playing to huge crowds throughout the country, his all-star team has been taking the measure of some of the best teams playing the indoor game.

At present there is considerable rivalry in New York between the Original Celtics, champions of the world, and Altrock's team and a big series to settle the championship.

FORBES' VIEWS ON FINANCE

—By B. C. Forbes—

How [illegible] the world?

[illegible] declare that the administration of government in this country has begun to crumble to pieces through [illegible] of political [illegible] serving [illegible] interests regardless of the consequences to [illegible] upon the rest of the country. Our [illegible] agricultural population are pictured as writhing in distress. Emphasis is placed upon the sad plight of American [illegible]. The nation's production facilities have been developed [illegible] beyond requirements, it is dolefully complained.

As for morality, hold-ups and other crimes of violence [illegible] the ways of our young folks, the decay of [illegible] why, the whole outlook is [illegible], we are told.

Read this indictment, composed in the form of a description of "Prices Current":

Law—Falling rapidly.

Modesty, Female—Quite out of fashion.

Morals—Falling rapidly.

National honor—None at market.

Poverty—A plentiful harvest expected.

[illegible] A [illegible] article [illegible] would [illegible] its possession.

[illegible]—In excellent speculation.

[illegible] Plentiful and cheap.

The [illegible] of "Prices Current," a [illegible] newspaper feature of a hundred and twenty-five years ago [illegible] from the Independent [illegible] Boston June [illegible]. There was no stock exchange [illegible] in the modern sense, but [illegible] that [illegible] newspapers printed [illegible] prices quotations on government [illegible] and a few [illegible] stocks. [illegible] both [illegible] to [illegible].

[illegible] have always be[illegible] that the country [illegible] the world [illegible] is heading toward [illegible]. [illegible] pouring out [illegible] on or [illegible] and stupidity [illegible] of our [illegible] popular [illegible]. [illegible] included are [illegible] over our [illegible] public and private. For the last five years the [illegible] has been abnormally large.

There should be a certain amount of comfort in [illegible] and a quarter [illegible] although there are doubtless many who will consider [illegible] it merely confirms their belief that we are approaching the [illegible] of the [illegible] and final destruction [illegible]. However, it [illegible] most of us to realize that it is a tough old world, that [illegible] has seen reforms come and go, and while some have fought [illegible] others have stood by and enjoyed the contest. Certainly, in the field of human relations [illegible] "there is nothing new under the sun."

When E. H. Harriman's last illness took an alarming turn, there was consternation in financial and stock market circles, for it was feared that [illegible] die [illegible] panic would break out in the stock market. Harriman did die, but his death caused not even a ripple. When the death occurred of J. P. Morgan, there was not the slightest disturbance anywhere. James J. Hill's removal was hardly noticed. President Harding's death had no effect upon affairs.

I often reflect on such facts when I hear or read dire prophecies of impending disaster. I reflect, too, upon the most disturbed periods in our history and on the many crises European countries have come through. If you read sermons of bygone preachers, you will find them shaking their heads even worse than the preachers of today over the apparent determination of the people to careen straight to the nether regions.

* * *

But, somehow, the old world continues to [illegible] and civilization continues to make progress.

New York, Dec. 11 (By A. P.)—Holiday disbursements to stockholders in American industrial and railroad corporations in the form of extra, increased or resumed dividends exclusive of the regular quarterly payments declared during December, will total well in excess of $50,000,000 according to reliable estimates in the financial district.

Total dividend disbursements by such corporations, which include practically all of those having wide stock distribution, in December is expected to exceed $150,000,000, while the year's dividends probably will aggregate more than $1,000,000,000 as compared with about $876,000,000 in 1922.

$200,000,000 A MONTH.

Interest payments to bondholders, including disbursements of this character on government obligations, average approximately $200,000,000 a month or $2,400,000,000 for the year.

Accurate statistics for the first eleven months of 1923 disclose dividend payments by industrial corporations of $458,710,500 and by railroads of $[illegible] as compared with $474,820,000 and $336,598,400 respectively for the corresponding period last year.

More than fifty corporations voted extra increased dividends or authorized the resumption of payments to stockholders after a lapse in such payments during the month of December. The number of such extra payments far exceeded those of the 1922 holiday season.

DELINQUENTS PAY UP.

Numerous corporations which had fallen behind in dividends on cumulative preferred stock voted substantial payments on such back payments, [illegible] being the action of directors of Lord & Taylor in [illegible] payment [illegible] on account of accumulated dividends of the second preferred stock.

Regular dividends in December by industrial corporations, it is estimated, will total about $[illegible], a figure somewhat greater than December [illegible] payments, while railroad dividends will approximate $4[illegible], also a larger sum than the amounts paid a year ago.

Extra or increased payments have [illegible] no one branch of industry, but rather have emanated [illegible] indicating that the general [illegible] of business was [illegible] 1923 despite the period of summer depression. The action taken is regarded also in financial circles as conveying the confidence of business leaders in the 1924 outlook.

WATERTOWN will receive bids until December 17, for $100,000 loan, $50,000 maturing May 30, 1924, and $50,000 June 30, 1924.

ATCHISON earnings for ten months show that, while 1923 is still considerably above 1922, difference is being lowered.

GENERAL ELECTRIC sales are close to record year.

RUTLAND PFD. has been displaying marked irregularity recently.

MEXICAN SEABOARD has brought in Calcallilao No. 29-A well 1,505 feet down at rate of 1,000 barrels a day; well is to be drilled deeper.

MORE German immigrants have arrived in Calumet, bringing the number who have come since mid summer to 300.

QUESTION of reopening the Kearsarge lode mines has arisen but there is nothing to indicate activities are planned now or for Spring.

PRICES ARE STEADY IN GRAIN MARKET

Chicago, Dec. 11.—The grain market was steady today. Wheat was unchanged to ⅛ off; corn unchanged to ¾ off, oats unchanged to ⅛. 70. Latest prices were: Wheat—Dec 103⅛; May 109 to ⅛; July 107¼. Corn—Dec. 73⅛ to ⅛; May 74⅛; July 75⅛. Oats—Dec 42⅛ to ¾; May 45⅞ to 4½, July 43⅞.

RALLYING TENDENCY IN COTTON FUTURES

New York, Dec. 11.—Cotton futures showed rallying tendencies today, prices advancing from 20 to 40 points. Buying was influenced by a much better tone at Liverpool following initial weakness. December sold at 33.40, up 20; January at 32.75, up 30; March at 3.30, up 40, and May at 33.40, up 40.

NEW HIGHS FOR YEAR SET IN NEW YORK

Corn Products, Lorillard and Willys-Overland set new highs for 1923 in trading today on the New York Stock Exchange. Corn Products was up 2 points.

American Can was up around 2 points, and National Lead added more than 3.

Tobacco Products was off around 2 points. Chicago & Northwestern off more than a point, set a new 1923 bottom.

Prices were somewhat irregular at the opening, with tobaccos, steels and some of the railroads tending downward. Some of the food shares, oils and motors found good support at better prices.

General Electric advanced [illegible] points and Chandler Motors, Schulte, Pullman and General Asphalt each declined a point.

U. S. Steel was steady after opening off. Decrease of 704,000 tons in the United States Steel statement for November was not so bad as feared in early estimates, showing the smallest recession since March. The aggregate of orders on the books of the Steel Corporation is now close to the early 1922 lowest, but with the passing of year-end reluctance of manufacturers to add to inventories the pendulum is expected to swing the other way.

Announcement of the government financing of $300,000,000 is [illegible] of more interest to the money market itself than to the [illegible]. Nevertheless the rates named by the Treasury Department are interesting, in that the six months issue commands 4 per cent. [illegible] 4¼ in September, further emphasizing the [illegible] decline in money rates [illegible].

It is probably safe to say that the general commercial [illegible] for money is [illegible] per cent and under [illegible] it is difficult to see what can transpire in the next three or four months to advance quotations.

PENN SEABOARD.

To A. A., Maolis avenue.—We beg to state that it is reported that [illegible] per cent of the $1,479,000 7 per cent notes of the Penn Seaboard Steel Corporation due February 1, 1924 had been taken care of in refunding operations.

There were rumors that the company was going to pay a dividend on its common stock and the preferred stock of a subsidiary. However, this probably could not amount to very much. The company is undoubtedly in need of working capital and that is pretty much what's the matter with it.

In the first seven months of the present year it earned a balance of nearly $60,000, which is a whole lot better than the big deficit reported last year. We should take our chances with this stock a little while longer rather than sell it for the pittance you would get for it now.

STAR MOTORS

To A. S., Barre.—Star Motors is something more than a speculation. It may or may not have a book value of $24 as you claim, but that cuts no figure at all. It is a speculation just the same. The company has not yet arrived at a point in its career where it can be just common rating as an established enterprise. It is purely a business development. Moreover, the stock is not [illegible] until two years have elapsed after the holder has made his last and final payment.

DOLORES ESPERANDA.

To M. F., Summer street.—Whether or not it is going to be well for you to buy more Dolores Esperanda is a matter that is highly conjectural and so impossible to solve through any statistical analysis that we shall have to impose upon you the responsibility of making the decision yourself. Last year the stock ranged in price between [illegible] cents and $1.25 and so far this year it has ranged between 70 cents and $2.75.

It is now quoted around 80 cents. There is absolutely no way of putting your finger on definite facts in trying to analyze it. It cannot be analyzed. The stock is purely a gamble.

LEE RUBBER.

To S. T. R., Bayswater street.—Condensed analysis you request follows—Lee Rubber & Tire—Capital shares of tire and rubber manufacturing company. Fairly steady. Management satisfactory. Financial position fair. Outstanding 21[illegible] shares of no par value. Sole capital liability. Asset value $10 a share. Current assets $5,119,063, including $345,698 cash, $1,562,299 accounts receivable, $185,205 acceptances, $3,568,064 inventories. Current liabilities $1,867,296 including $365,138 accounts payable, $302,160 accruals, $1,200,000 notes payable. Working capital $3,251,767. Surplus $464,043. Reserves $600,000. Dividend recently passed.

MANHATTAN SHARES.

To C. R. L., Auckland street.—In view of the recent Supreme Court decision establishing the position of Manhattan Railway stockholders who refused to give their consent to the readjustment plan there is nothing to gain by continued dissent on the lease modification.

Two men holding 1,[illegible] shares of Manhattan stock recently brought suit against the Interborough Rapid Transit to compel the payment of dividends at the rate of 7 per cent., as stipulated in the original 999 year lease of the Manhattan Railway.

The court held that the agreement of the Interborough was with the Manhattan Company and not with the individual stockholders of the latter company, that the 7 per cent was paid as rent, that under the terms of the lease the amount of rent to be paid can be changed by agreement between the two companies under changing conditions, and that the promise to pay 7 per cent could not survive a valid revocation or modification of the lease by the two corporations.

The Manhattan Railway consented to the modification after a [illegible] favorable vote by the stockholders. You as an individual stockholder cannot, according to the [illegible], compel the payment of the old rate. The best you can do is to turn in your certificates and accept [illegible] under the modified lease.

M. VIVAUDOU

To P. N. L., Sturtevant street.—Directors of V. Vivaudou, Inc., have [illegible] to stockholders the issuance of $1,000,000 of [illegible] per cent cumulative preferred stock to be used for the payment of a dividend on its common stock during the coming year [illegible].

The proposition to [illegible] [illegible] from the desire of the directors to invest profits in the company and to meet the needs of working capital while at the same time allowing the distribution of earnings to stockholders.

For the first ten months of the current year the company's sales amounted to $3,536,000, against $3,417,000 in the corresponding period of 1922 and $1,963,000 during the 1921 period. Operating profits were $745,000, compared with $655,000 in the corresponding ten months of 1922 and $[illegible] in the 1921 period.

MINN.-ST. LOUIS 5s

To O. H. F., Corry street.—Minneapolis & St. Louis first consolidated 5s occupy a favorable position, shown by action of United States Federal Court in ordering receiver to pay interest on the bonds.

Strength of this issue lies in fact that the mortgage is closed at $[illegible]. While company has demonstrated in recent years its inability to earn full interest charges on its whole funded debt of $46,010,000, payment of interest on consolidated 5s is comparatively easy, 5 per cent amounts to only $[illegible] a year. It is plain that this amount of interest can be paid throughout period of receivership. For this reason bond is attractive for any one who need not confine himself to high grade investments.

JOHNSON PLANS TO CAMPAIGN IN BAY STATE

New York, Dec. 11.—Senator Hiram Johnson of California will make a personal campaign in Massachusetts, home State of President Coolidge, for the Republican Presidential nomination. It was announced tonight by A. B. Murtha, one of the Senator's Eastern campaign managers.

Sen. Johnson

Mr. Murtha commented upon reports from Washington that President Coolidge's friends planned entering the California primary fight, and declared Senator Johnson would go to Massachusetts "personally to speak his candidacy frankly and fairly to the men and women who have enrolled in the Republican party."

"He is going to lead a drive to take the whole delegation away from Mr. Coolidge," said Mr. Murtha.

Coolidge's Managers to Invade California

Washington, Dec. 11.—Announcement of President Coolidge's candidacy for the Republican presidential nomination was followed by an immediate drawing of lines with Senator Johnson of California at present Coolidge's only declared opponent.

The gathering of party leaders here for the meeting of the Republican National Committee, which convenes today, to fix the place and date of the 1924 convention, served to develop sharply the conflict between President Coolidge and Senator Johnson, with the possibility that Mr. Coolidge may enter the presidential primary in Senator Johnson's home State.

The President was told by William H. Crocker, Republican national committeeman for California, plans of his friends to press his cause in California, Mr. Crocker expressing the belief the contest would result in a Coolidge victory.

Senator Johnson said today that he not only was entirely willing to meet President Coolidge in the California primary, but hoped the President's name would be entered before the voters of that State.

"Long ago I extended an invitation to all candidates to come into the California primaries," said Mr. Johnson. "I do hope President Coolidge comes in. If he does we will again prove the inaccuracy of Mr. Crocker's political prognostications."

A belief apparent among Senator Johnson's friends that Administration bucking was swung to Cleveland because it was felt Senator Johnson might have strength in Chicago was said to be in part behind the reported plans of a fight against the selection of Cleveland for the convention.

R. B. Creager, Texas committeeman sent letters to all of the committee members urging them to take a vigorous stand against the Klan.

Mr. Creager gave notice that he would attempt to assert a plank in the 1924 platform condemning the Klan.

FAMED SONG WRITER HEADS KEITH'S BILL

An excellent bill at Keith's is headed by Harry Carroll, famed song writer and man of wit. His tabloid musical comedy, starring Ida May Chadwick, is as funny a skit as has been seen on Keith's stage for some time.

Joe Donahue, brother of the far-famed Jack Donahue, known wherever the footlights are, produces some remarkable dancing, proving that talent for the terpsichorean art is not wasted in the Donahue family. The O'Neal sisters are "right there" with a bit of dance and song.

A reproduction of the second act of George Kelley's farce, "The Torch Bearers," produced by Mrs Gene Hughes, gives a mighty comical version of "local talent" staging a charity play. As funny a thing as you could see.

Roye and Maye, dancers, drew many a hearty laugh, and Charles Olcott and Polly Anne, with their whimsical songs, deserved all the applause they received.

THREE POLICEMEN ARE REPRIMANDED

Three Somerville policemen were publicly reprimanded at roll-call following a private hearing before Mayor Webster. They were Patrolmen Harry W. Roche and John H O'Leary, and Reserve Officer Joseph P. Blake. All were found guilty of neglect of duty.

PILOT PRAISES CAMPAIGN FOR CLEAN SHOWS

Fred Stone, an actor who gained nation-wide publicity through his conversion a few months ago, is the leader in a wide and forceful agitation among members of the theatrical professional against immoral shows.

Fred Stone

An editorial in the current issue of the Pilot, the official publication of the Catholic archdiocese of Boston, commends the action of the theatrical profession, and declares that it rests in the hands of the public whether the sex shows shall continue in vogue.

"The present agitation over immoral shows and the praiseworthy attitude of many members of the theatrical profession are encouraging signs that the public is awakening to the growing menace of morals in indecent spectacles and is ready to take preventive measures to stop them," the editorial states.

"The recent denunciation of certain New York plays, both present and in prospect, must be well founded," continues the editorial, "when actors and actresses themselves have banded together to protect their profession from degradation. Fred Stone is the leader of this new movement to purge the stage of its indecencies.

"The sentiments which he has expressed in favor of more wholesome theatrical productions will strike a responsive chord in the breasts of all clean minded persons who regard the theatre as a legitimate means of amusement, entertainment and instruction. This sincere and popular artist has refused absolutely to allow his young daughter, just entering upon a stage career, to participate in questionable productions and will keep her near himself to furnish a guarantee, as it were, to the public of the wholesomeness of his shows."

NEW TITLE GIVEN MUSICAL COMEDY

In the preliminary announcements the name of Laurence Schwab's new musical comedy booked for the Shubert Theatre next week was given as "My Dear Lady," with Constance Binney, but between the time these announcements were furnished the press and the time they were in print the title of the piece was changed overnight to "A Perfect Lady." The musical comedy remains the same, Miss Binney and the same cast are in it, but Mr Schwab's presentation will play Boston under the later title.

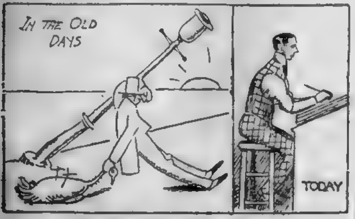
Bringing Home the Turkey

Tom Powers Shows Two Ways

Copyright, 1923, Star Co.

Mr. T. E. Powers, one of the youngest, in REAL youth, of America's humorous philosophers, delights the readers of this newspaper with his studies of American life. A sample of his work you see here.



THE OLD AND THE NEW

This shows Mr. Powers' idea of "bringing home the turkey" in the good old days, before prohibition interfered with human liberty, and otherwise made life so disagreeable, and TODAY.

Quite FREE from interference, and, with his "human liberty" doing its best, you see a proud American citizen, slightly disturbed mentally, bringing home a turkey to a family that, if the choice were offered, would like to have both the man and turkey ten thousand miles away.

In the right hand side of his picture Mr. Powers shows another and a considerably improved method of "bringing home the turkey." In this picture the turkey isn't visible, but that turkey EXISTS. It is being created by a man that WORKS. He is using his precious "human liberty" not to get drunk at a turkey raffle or some other entertainment, but to get his work done and then go out and get what his family needs.

Everybody knows that there is truth in these two pictures. The closing of the saloon has proved itself the greatest blessing to this country, above all to fathers and mothers.

Everybody knows that savings bank deposits have increased by nearly ONE BILLION DOLLARS in a year, a fact due to diminished drunkenness.

It is true that prohibition brings with it the evils of bootlegging. And bootlegging brings with it the most dreadful epidemic of crime that has ever afflicted this country.

Nevertheless, these pictures, combined with millions of dollars added to savings bank accounts, with encouraging statistics as to home building and home buying, with the diminishing number of men and women sent to prisons and insane asylums, all mean that if it were possible to combine prohibition with respect for law—which has not been done as yet—the closing of the saloons that peddled whiskey on every street corner would have proved itself the greatest possible national blessing.

Disabled Vets' Association

Charge of Dishonesty in Its Administration Should Be Thoroughly Investigated

It is sad news, if true, that there has been dishonesty in the administration of the Massachusetts Association of Disabled Veterans of the World War. These are institutions which we like to consider to be especially free from the taint of dishonesty.

Honesty is an absolute quality and to say that you expect one man or one institution to be more honest than another man or another institution may seem inconsistent. For the same man in one set of circumstances is much less likely to be dishonest or much more likely to be honest than in another set of circumstances. So we may say that the Disabled Veterans' Association ought to be a place most likely to call forth the honest instincts of men.

One of our Boston daily newspapers, seeking to discredit certain leading Massachusetts Democrats, publishes the names of the advisory board of this organization in such a connection as to leave the impression that they had some culpable publicity in the affair. It is only sufficient to say that the advisory board is headed by David I. Walsh to make it clear that the board itself is not involved.

We hope that the association will be thoroughly investigated and thoroughly fumigated.

The Flying Sleeper

It Is Coming

Copyright, 1923, Star Co.

Engineers announce that flying machine sleeping cars will soon travel between New York and Chicago with safety for travelers. Financiers are working out the details of a corporation.

That should interest railroad men and make them wake up. The Vanderbilt brothers, who own a large part of the Twentieth Century train, may feel before long like the owners of a hansom cab line after the taxis came in. Perhaps those young men are working on the proposed "flying sleeper."

It is known that Mr. Carry, president of the Pullman Company, has had his men investigating the possibility of manufacturing flying Pullman cars for several years. They will soon come. What Virgil imagined in his sixth book of the Aeneid will soon be prosaic fact. We must still "crawl toward truth." But we need no longer crawl along the earth. We'll fly.

Will Your Widow Dress as Well as Your Wife?

THERE is, also, the "limited payment plan," which gets over sooner the business of paying for the policy. The most popular terms are fifteen and twenty years. In such a case, you pay for the limited term—unless your estate or family collect sooner should you die—and thereafter you have a paid-up contract with nothing to worry about.

Then there is the so-called endowment policy, which saves for you and insures you at the same time.

Stay Out of Europe

Editor Boston American

Since the days of the Spanish conquistadores and the English conquerors of India, Europe and her statesmen have caused sorrow and turmoil to the entire world. Despite the pleas of our denationalized Americans to have our country enmeshed in the snare of the Machiavellian diplomacy of Europe, let us be on our guard and see that our statesmen adhere closely to the policies of our two greatest Americans, Washington and Lincoln, who also are our two greatest American statesmen

W. L. COGLEY.

For Hiram Johnson

Editor Boston American:

I beg to say through your paper that I am willing to bet anyone at this early date that the Hon. Hiram W. Johnson, U. S. Senator of California, will be our next President. We want this good, live patriot. He is an American that no foreign diplomat can fool or buy; we want true patriotic and diplomatic men in office, not a lot of paid tools of Great Britain who pretend to be Americans when they are not.

PETER V. FERNANDES.

A Sad Christmas

Editor Helping Hand.

My husband has been ill practically all Summer and a month ago he was obliged to take to bed for three weeks, and got so thin and weak I didn't know what we were going to do. I did not know which way to turn for money, and I had to visit my sister or brother around twelve o'clock every day in order to get something to eat. Now the Family Welfare Society has been helping me out a little, so I am not as bad as I was at first. Three weeks ago my husband developed tuberculosis and I have only one bed for two children and myself to sleep in. I am promised half a bed couch, but I have only two pairs of pillow cases and only two sheets and a pair of blankets that are not very heavy. I would also appreciate a coat for myself and clothes for the children, a boy three and a girl one. We have decided to send my husband to Rutland, so it will be a sad Christmas for me and the children, but God is good and maybe our luck will change.

MRS. M. B. G.

Offers Two Women's Coats

Editor Helping Hand:

I have two women's heavy Winter coats size 36 that I would like to give to someone who needs them.

Mrs. D. McI

Thank you. You have been sent the address of Mrs. F. R. C., who needs a coat.

Baby Clothes and Overcoats

Editor Helping Hand:

In reading the dire need of so many in the Helping Hand I feel as though we had a lot to be thankful for if we are the least bit better off. I have a few things that would fit a baby one and a half, some infants clothes for an expectant mother, and two men's overcoats, one size 38 and another size 42.

MRS. A. V. C.

Thank you. You have been sent the addresses of Mrs. B. W. A., who has an eighteen months' baby; of Mrs. F. R., who expects a baby soon; of Mrs. E. S., whose husband needs an overcoat size 38, and of E. G., who will be grateful for the other coat.

To Send Xmas Package

Editor Helping Hand:

I have a coat and a crocheted tam for a girl of six or seven and a pair of rubbers, size eleven. Please send me the address of a family of only one or two little girls, six or under, that I can send a Christmas package to. Wish I could help all.

MRS. L. B. S.

You have certainly helped a great many through the Helping Hand just the same. You have been sent the address of Mrs. E. L. R., who has a girl six and one younger. Thank you.

Dresses and Shoes

Editor Helping Hand:

I have some clothes (dresses, shoes and coat) that might be of use to someone in need. The size is sixteen and eighteen years, and the shoes are five.

MRS. H. R. H

Thank you. You have been sent the address of M. B., a sixteen-year-old girl, who is trying to support several brothers and sisters.

Doll for Crippled Girl

Editor Helping Hand:

I am dressing a doll that I want some little cripple girl about ten years old to have. It has blonde hair, brown eyes, with real hair lashes, and is fully jointed. It is 28 inches high and a doll that would delight such a child. If you will send me the address of a child that cannot run and play like other little girls, I will take the doll to her Christmas.

MRS. E. H. G

This sounds like a doll that would delight the heart of any little girl. Will some crippled child of ten write us!

LET'S MAKE 50,000 HAPPY

Families made happy by a Boston American Christmas basket last year have been talking about it ever since. Let's give them and others something more to be grateful for this year. Let's make the record 50,000 persons fed. We can do it with the aid of the ample and generous Helping Hand. Send in your quota at once. See details on another page.

Check for Basket Fund

Editor Helping Hand:

I am glad to add my mite to your wonderful column, rightly named indeed. A small check is enclosed for the Basket Fund from "A Friend"; and I have a good Winter coat and a warm skirt, size 40 or 42, I'd like someone to have. Will be glad to send them to anyone you say.

MRS. M. W. F.

Thank you for both gifts. The contribution has been turned over to the Basket Fund and you have been sent the address of Mrs. M. H., who will be grateful for the skirt and coat.

Family Greatly in Need

Editor Helping Hand:

I would like to call your attention to a family greatly in need of assistance. The mother is a widow with four children, all of whom need underclothing badly. Their ages are: Girl fifteen, girl eleven, boy thirteen, boy six. The youngest girl is just recovered from scarlet fever, and the little boy wears a thin Summer suit to school. Anything in the line of clothing would be gratefully received. None of them have sweaters except the thirteen-year-old boy.

MRS. W. McL.

Other Offers

The editor wishes to express his sincere thanks to the following people for their generous offers of assistance to those in need. They have been sent the addresses requested:

DR. FRANK CRANE ON A VERY INDIVIDUAL HOTEL IN TOKIO

By Dr. Frank Crane

I COUNT the Imperial Hotel at Tokio the newest thing in the world.

In this statement the word "new" is used not in reference to time, but in reference to spirit. For instance, the parables of Jesus are the newest thing in fiction, although they are two thousand years old, and most of the stories and novels of today are born like the Chinese sage with white hair and whiskers a foot long.

I do not say this hotel is the best in the world. As to best, tastes differ, and the number of the supercilious is so overwhelming that nothing recent has a chance. Besides this, some palates prefer chicken en casserole and others prefer it plain fried.

But I can candidly say that on a trip through the Orient I have found nothing so agreeably shattering as this hotel.

The mind of the man who built it was utterly liberated. None but the ignorant would call him a crank, for his work shows two marks which no crank has; it is first beautiful, and second entirely practical and appropriate.

Is Utterly Individual

I will not undertake to describe this structure, but simply to give some of the reactions it produced upon me.

First of all, it is utterly individual. It looks as if it grew and not as if it were made. Every door, window, bed, table and chair in it belongs right there and nowhere else.

When you are taken to your bedroom you do not find yourself in a conventional cell fitted with Grand Rapids furniture. Nor Adam period, nor Louis Quatorze, nor Chippendale, nor any other style except the Imperial Hotel. You feel you are in an apartment to every detail of which the architect gave as much attention as he did to the front porch. There is a mirror, but it is built into the wall and runs from the floor to the ceiling, as every sensible mirror should do. The desk for you to write on is like no other desk in the world, and the bed you sleep in and the electric apparatus that gives heat are equally distinctive.

Bold and Sure-Footed Genius

Everywhere your eye may light it is intrigued by a new and exquisite device of construction or ornamentation.

All I can do is to endeavor to indicate the impression that the whole made upon me. William Morris and the Roycrofters of East Aurora made some beautiful things, but here a bold and sure-footed genius, apparently backed by unlimited capital, has done what they attempted to do.

It is the work of a master, and as you wander through the building it is as if you were strolling through the rhymes of Dante or the strong and unearthly beautiful verses of Francis Thompson.

UNCLE SAM PROBES THE ATTIC

By Herbert Kaufman

UNCLE SAM wants to know what's hiding in the Arctic Circle.

More good news for map manufacturers and geography publishers. Ever since 1914 circumstances have conspired to promote their markets. Each boundary shift and frontier change means another issue of globes and textbooks; and, now, revision of Arctic charts is forecast by Lieutenant-Commander Fitzhugh Green, one of the naval experts chosen by Secretary Denby to make an inventory of the world's ice-bound attic.

No one has the slightest conception of the wealths contained in a million square miles lying between Alaska and the Pole. Having purchased from Russia fifty billion dollars' worth of gold and coal (not to mention timber reserves, oil deposits and reindeer tundras) at a trivial outlay of seven millions, the Federal government considers it shrewd business to survey a region which may add far vaster stores to our resources.

Few of us realized that there remained on earth a free-to-all domain, comparable in area to the stretch of country west of the Mississippi. Or that the boreal climate, six months in the year, isn't a bit colder than the extreme temperature of upper Michigan. Or that an atmospheric Gulf Stream, bearing warm air currents from the Equator, probably insures cozy airship journeys to aurora-land.

History as a Second-Hand Dealer

There's still plenty to learn, as earthworm specialists will agree, after devoting a whole century to quizzing fishbait. And, at that, some seven hundred species haven't yet confessed to science their habits and purposes. Sophomores, please take notice.

The alien question, likewise, presents no original phases. Unchecked immigration and neglectful naturalization laws delivered Rome to ruin.

The harm had already been done when Emperor Claudius, receiving a deputation from Asia Minor, found that none of the delegates could speak a word of Latin. His predecessors should have decreed that "he is not Roman who is ignorant of the language of Rome."

President Coolidge, proposing racial quotas based upon assimilation percentages, adopts the suggestion repeatedly offered by the writer, whose research, while special assistant to the Secretary of the Interior in charge of Americanization, indicated that no family tree is really fixed in our soil until it begins to send out tap roots.

Hats in the Ring!

Since Hiram Johnson has preempted Chicago for an operating base, President Coolidge deserts the Republican party's traditional convention ground and turns to Cleveland, Ohio.

The Middle West won't be won, however, by mere territorial gestures. World Court attitudes, taxation policies, transportation measures and agricultural planks will determine whether Moose or Elephant shall prevail yonder.

Third party likelihoods intensify as Pinchot and Johnson hold extended conference and refuse a peep at their cards to interviewers.

The President, though, shows his hand. Calvin Coolidge is a confessed candidate for re-election.

STELLA DALLAS By Olive Higgins Prouty

New and Intensely Interesting Serial of a Marriage of an Educated Man to an Untutored Woman

HOW THE STORY STARTED

Stella Dallas and her husband, Stephen, do not live together. They have a daughter, thirteen years old, named Laurel, who stays most of the year with the mother. These two are now at a Summer hotel in New England, where the other guests look askance at the painted, overdressed elder woman. The time has come for Laurel to visit her father in New York. He meets her at the station and takes her to a hotel. She goes to visit Mrs. Morrison. The story now goes back to the marriage of Stephen and Stella.

By OLIVE HIGGINS PROUTY

Author of "Bobbie, General Manager," "The Fifth Wheel," "The Star in the Window," Etc.

BUT her only passion, as far as books were concerned, seemed to be in their decorative quality.

One day she spent three hours changing Stephen's careful arrangement of his books, so that all the bindings of one color should be grouped together, irrespective of subject.

One evening when Stephen started to read out loud to her from one of his favorite authors, in an attempt to lure her inside the books, she told him good-naturedly, for goodness' sake not to spout any more of that dead, old-fashioned, high-brow stuff to her. It gave her the fidgets.

She had no love at all for music, it appeared, although during the short period of their courtship she told Stephen she was "crazy about it," and in fact seemed to him to be. She was a beautiful dancer. "I just can't keep still when there's a tune going on."

But after her first real musical concert with Stephen, one Saturday night several weeks after their marriage (Boston artists often came to Milhampton), she frankly confessed herself as horribly bored. A violin made her want to scream. It was so squeaky, like filing finger-nails with a steel file, she thought.

Of course if musical concerts, Kneisel quartettes and the like were "the thing," she was game for them. But really a good vaudeville show (movies were then in their infancy) was much more entertaining. And a good play, where you saw modern actors, kept you so much better up-to-date, and rubbed the green moss off you in rolls.

The beauty of out-of-doors had no attraction for her, nor flowers either, her morning-glories and wild cucumbers notwithstanding. She spent a good deal of time outdoors, walking; not, however, for the physical exhilaration of it, but simply "to reduce" (even then Stella was inclined to be a little plump) or to save the price of a car-fare, which she usually invested in candy. She was always nibbling at candy.

Often during the first few months of his marriage, grave doubts and misgivings assailed Stephen, but he was able to send them slinking away usually by comparing his present existence with that of a year ago. A year ago his evenings had been awful stretches of loneliness and unloveliness.

Now each night there was a very pretty and always good-natured Stella waiting for him in a little sweet-smelling apartment and after his evening meal there were distant sounds far from unpleasing to him, of running water and rattling dishes, as he sat smoking and reading in his old Morris chair, wrapped round with his books and his rugs and a few treasured pieces of furniture unburied from a storehouse in Reddington.

Stella was game for any show considered "the thing"

Later, there was somebody sitting on the arm of his Morris chair, pressing against his shoulder, somebody soft and warm and alive, and his—all his, to do with as he pleased. No; he was not sorry that he had married Stella.

If time had not been steadily at work performing its gentle cure upon Stephen, he might never have been sorry he had married Stella. But old hopes, old ideals began to reassert themselves. In spite of himself, gradually, slowly, Stephen became interested in his job at the Cataract Mills.

More than once that Spring, Stella, coming in from the kitchen of the little apartment after the supper dishes had been put away, found Stephen poring over one of the sheepskin-bound volumes from the bottom shelf of the bookcases he had had built around the living-room, his precious Trollope or Meredith (Lord, what did he find in those old birds?) pushed aside, discarded.

What Is the Effect Upon the Two, and Especially Upon Their Strange and Beautiful Child Laurel?

The sheepskin-bound volumes were Stephen's law-books. He told Stella he wanted to satisfy a curiosity he had, as to the legal right or wrong of certain affairs at the Cataract Mills. Stephen was in the Complaint Department at the mills at that time.

This curiosity of Stephen's percolated through the man immediately above him, and through the next man, and the next, and the next, and so on to the general manager finally. Once the general manager discovered Stephen, it was every night then that he pored over the law-books.

Stella did not begrudge the late nights Stephen spent with the big volumes.

"Gracious," she had exclaimed, eyes aglint, when Stephen confided to her that the general manager had suggested that he pass his bar examination, so as to be able to assist in the legal end of the business, if occasion arose. "Gracious, a lawyer! My! Won't I feel just grand? Oh, Stephen, I knew I'd picked a winner. I would not be a bit surprised if I found myself a governor's wife some day, or a president's! Gosh, wouldn't I be thrilled?"

"Oh, Stella. Not 'Gosh.' Please."

"Oh, well—Jiminy then—What's the diff? Lord, I'm excited!"

"Poor Stella," thought Stephen. "Poor Stephen, too!" For it occurred to him suddenly, sickeningly, gazing at Stella, listening to Stella, that there were two reasons now instead of one a year ago why he should avoid the smiles and favors of success.

But he didn't. He couldn't. Much in the same way as water seeks its own level, so Stephen had a level he, too, involuntarily sought. He had been born with the love of success running in his veins and it wouldn't be denied.

Mr. Palmer, the general manager o' the Cataract Mills, became very much interested in Stephen Dallas. He had no son of his own; he had no protege in whom to feel pride and pleasure. He could well feel pride and pleasure in Stephen. Stephen was by nature very adaptable, very approachable. His father's act had only temporarily crippled his graceful self-confidence.

He was tall and slight, more aristocratic than rugged in appearance; forehead high, eyes well-set, chin and mouth strong and distinctive. His dark, close-cut hair grew thick on top of his head, but receded on either side like so many American boys still in their twenties. The mustache, restrained and close-cut, which he had allowed to grow when he first came to Milhampton, in order to make him forget whom he had been before, gave him a foreign look.

"English," delightedly whispered some of the Milhampton women, to whom everything English was desirable.

Mr. Palmer suggested his name for membership at the Milhampton City Club; at the River Country Club; introduced him to a group of young lawyers. Stephen ran across some old college acquaintances, some old law-school contemporaries. Swiftly, with amazing speed old lines of communication were established between himself and the world to which he belonged. The impression he made upon Milhampton was distinctly favorable.

One day Mrs. Palmer invited Stephen and his wife to dinner. Others invited Stephen and his wife to dinner. Stephen became very anxious to feel pride in Stella, now that he had begun to feel pride again in himself. Stella became very anxious that he should feel pride in her.

To appear the lady Stephen's wife should have been born became Stella's greatest ambition. On the first few occasions when she appeared with Stephen before the footlights of the social life in Milhampton—a stage she had gazed upon with longing eyes for years—she would do nothing, say nothing, almost think nothing, until it was first approved by Stephen.

At first she invited his criticism, responded with eagerness to his constant drilling and grilling, welcomed his slightest suggestion. Of course she made progress. She was a clever mimic. At first Stephen had great hopes for Stella.

To Prevent Paint From Sticking to Your Windows

When a house is being painted inside or out, the windows are usually splashed with paint. This is difficult to remove from the window glass. You can save yourself a great deal of trouble if you take this precaution: Give your windows a coating of cleaning powder before the painting is begun. When the painting is done you can easily remove both paint and powder. THE HOUSEWIFE.

SECRETS OF HEALTH

VALUE OF FOODS

By Charles A. L. Reed,

Former President of the American Medical Association.

SOMETIMES your most valuable lessons come from the most serious calamities. A recent lesson of this kind relates to the worth of the food that you eat. The calamity that furnished this particular lesson was the aftermath of the great war that left Greece and Turkey at each others' throats.

Dr. Reed

These were clashes of arms, massacres of men and women, of fathers and mothers. It left more than a hundred thousand fatherless, motherless, homeless, starving children in Greece alone. Their piteous cries reached America and America answered, is today answering and must continue to do so with food. But America answered not merely with food, masses of food, shiploads of food, but she answered also with science. The food was scientifically selected and issued to yield the maximum of nourishment with the minimum of quantity; for the committee had to make it go as far as possible.

But the scientists of the committee went farther. As far as possible they selected food that was also rich in those mysterious energy-giving substances called vitamins. If only they could have had butter fat, the richest of all in vitamins! But of course they couldn't have everything and they did the best they could.

And with what result!

The poor starved children grew fat and thrived on the meager diet thus scientifically selected. And it is just there that the lesson comes in:

We owe, actually owe, much to these innocent and homeless orphans for the benefits they have given us by being patients in this vast clinic in which has been tried the most momentous scientific laboratory experiment in dietetics that the world has ever seen.

We, at our house, did this Sunday, December 2, "Golden Rule Day," for these unfortunates by eating for our Sunday dinner only macaroni, corn syrup and cocoa and two vegetables, just one of their meals—no desserts—and by paying to the fund for their benefit (Near East Relief, No. 151 Fifth avenue, New York), the difference between its cost and the cost of our usual Sunday dinner.

WAYS OF A HUSBAND

SEQUEL TO "WHEN A GIRL MARRIES"

By Ann Lisle

"RALPH!" I begged.

"Let me say it," he urged. "I know how delicate your sensibilities are and that you're feeling angry at yourself because you couldn't help collapsing. But you'd have been made of stone if you hadn't gone to pieces. You were so sure you were going to have Neal in your arms before the evening was over—and then led you up against a blank wall. I know you want to wipe the whole miserable evening from your mind. And—I'll forget it also."

Ann Lisle

"I'll remember the friendship that wanted to help," I said.

"And you will remember that true love never wants to harm," said Ralph gravely. "It just wants to stand by. I know how strong you are, Anne. But even a woman like you wants comforting sometimes."

"Yes," I agreed sadly, with averted face; "I need comforting osemtimes."

I wish I could always be there," began Ralph, with a note of desperation in his voice. Then his instinctive chivalry made him add: "After all, to you I'm Neal's older brother. I know how much my resemblance to him means to you. And I sometimes think my love for you is a little like Neal's. He worships his Babbsie, you know. And he'll manage to come back to her some day soon. If I can help there's nothing in the world I won't do."

"I know, Ralph," I replied.

After that we drove on through the rushing night wind without exchanging a word. The silence healed and comforted me somewhat. And I never lost the sense of Ralph's sympathy and understanding and the fine chivalry which had made him link his feeling for me with that Neal might feel. When we arrived at the apartment it was a little after midnight.

"Shall I come in and—help you explain to Jim?" Ralph ventured.

"I'd better go alone," I murmured.

But I wondered what comfort Jim would offer me in this hour of desperate disappointment.

Jim was asleep when I returned from the ride to the Sampson farmhouse on which I'd started with such high hopes of finding Neal. He didn't stir and so I refrained from waking him. But I lay sleepless for a long time after I got to bed, longing for some comfort and understanding in this the blackest hour I've known since Neal disappeared.

Shaken by a sudden terrible premonition that I could never find Neal now, I ached for the sound of Jim's voice. The blackness of the night seemed a grim and terrible thing and the hours streached ahead interminably. I tossed from side to side, trying in vain to sleep.

It was all I could do to keep from murmuring "Jim," to see if he was sleeping lightly and would awake for a moment. But I reproached myself for so much as thinking of such a thing. Jim had been in grave danger on that day during which he lay unconscious in Ruth Gregory's cottage, and he needed the peaceful quiet sleep he appeared to be getting.

But down in my hart I knew that if Jim had been off on some mission as near to his heart as my trip to look for Neal was to mine, I could never have slept until I had word of his success—or failure. And as he lay peacefully slumbering while I restlessly tossed from side to side, I felt further from Jim than I have ever dreamed I could be from him.

At last, driven by desperation, I got up and took a bromide. I knew I'd have to get some sleep or I woudn't be fit for the day's work. The bromide evidently took effect, for the sun was streaming into the room when I woke and Jim was nowhere to be seen. I couldn't bring myself to call and make sure whether he was still home. So I bathed and dressed, beset by nervous fears that he'd gone off without waiting to speak to me.

When at last I got out to the dining-room, there sat Jim, reading the paper and with the remains of a canteloupe before him to show that he hadn't risked starving while waiting for me.

"Hello, Anne," he said, getting to his feet and walking over to put his lips lightly against my cheek. "How's yourself? I'm feeling so fit after my night's rest that I think I'll go downtown this morning. I'll treat to a taxi if you're ready to start when I go. Pile in, lady, the melon's sweet as sugar."

"Jim," I reproached, "aren't you even interested enough in the results of my trip to ask a single question?"

CORRECT MANNERS

By Mrs. Cornelius Beeckman

DEAR MRS BEECKMAN:

(1) When eating prunes, how should the pits be disposed of?

(2) What should be done with olive pits?

(3) When a gentleman asks a young lady out, should she thank him at the end of the evening? H. A. W.

IT is best not to put the pits in your mouth. With your spoon (or spoon and fork) separate the fruit from the pit and leave the pits on the side of the dish in which they are served. If you put the pits in your mouth, remove them between the first finger and thumb.

(2) Put them on the side of the bread and butter plate or on the side of the service plate.

(3) Yes, very cordially and graciously, for the happiness that he had given her.

HOUSEHOLD HINTS

Soapsuds should be saved until cold for garden use, as they form an excellent dressing for the soil. They are good for roses, and if applied with a syringe will soon rid them of insect pests.

* * *

Use raw cabbage as much as possible, because, in its raw state, it is richer in vitamines than any other vegetable. For variety add a quarter of a cupful of chopped pineapple to cabbage salad. It gives a blend of flavor that is liked even by those who are not fond of pineapple alone.

Medbury Says—

By John P. Medbury

NOW that "Put and Take" tops have gone out of style, everybody is playing Mah Jong. This is a game that was invented by the same race that discovered laundries.

MAH JONG is like love. No matter how long you play at it you never know what it's all about.

SHOOTING craps isn't as dignified, but it's more practical.

VERY few people know how to play this Pung Chow, that's why you can win so much money from your company in one evening.

A MAN who doesn't owe a cent in the world can go home a thousand dollars in debt.

IF it wasn't for this Mah Jong a lot of Chinese cooks would never have a chance to get into your parlor.

ONE Oriental laundryman always plays his customers to see who pays for the week's wash.

THAT'S why so many husbands are going around with soiled shirts on.

ONE man says he'll be able to wear a clean one as soon as his wife wins a hand of Mah Jong.

BUT it's hard to beat a laundryman at his own game.

THERE are 144 tiles in a Mah Jong set, and if you ever get tired of playing, there are almost enough to make a good floor in your bath room.

PART of the tiles are composed of the four winds and the four seasons. One man always looks in the newspaper for the weather report before he plays.

ONCE-OVERS

BE YOUR CHILDREN'S NEVER-FAILING FRIEND.

You may regret that your children are not as good looking as some other children you know—they may not be as bright, even, as these other children.

But, if you have any such ideas, do not let your children suspect it.

Make your children feel that you think they are just as fine in every way, to you, as any children could be.

Convince your youngsters that, no matter what others say of them, they can come to you and you will soothe their sorrow and disappointment over what others say about their not being as winsome and bright as their companions.

The knowledge that you are solidly back of their efforts, their personalities and their defects, making them a source of blessing, is the best possible aid to overcome the world.

My little niece was particularly trying to her mother one day until her mother said: "If you are naughty, Elsie, no one will love you."

"Yes, mother, I know someone who will love me, the badder I am, the more he loves me."

"Who?" inquired her mother in perplexity.

"Why, the devil," calmly replied the little one.

THE BEST JOKE I EVER HEARD

The Boston American will pay $1 for "Best Joke" published. Address "Best Joke," Boston American.

"Did my wife make a speech at the meeting this afternoon?"

"Well, I don't believe I've ever met your wife, but a large, distinguished looking woman got up and started by saying she couldn't find words to express her feelings."

"That wasn't my wife."

EMBARRASSING MOMENTS

While waiting for a package to be done up in a department store, I noticed a square seat covered with rag rugs. Being very tired I attempted to sit on the top of the rugs when to my surprise and horror, the seat which was of cardboard, gave way and I crashed through to the floor, doubling up on my head. Two gentlemen rushed over and pulled me out much to my embarrassment.
